65th Year–261

Big Welcome Is Planned For Returning President

EMPHASIZING WHAT IS MEANT by free elections in America, the State Department's "Voice of America" in New York broadcasted the results of the presidential elections to listeners all over the world. Above are five of the multi-lingual broadcasters who participated in a running account of the results in (l. to r.) German, Chinese, Russian, Spanish and Italian.

Only 10,897 Countians Out For Tuesday's Big Election

The number of Pickaway County votes cast in Tuesday's election followed the nation's general trend where reports indicate fewer voters turned out than expected.

County board of election officials said Thursday a total of 10,897 ballots were cast here. This was 462 less than in 1944, the previous presidential election, they said.

Pre-election predictions hinted an expected 12,000 votes to be cast in Pickaway County, which of course, was far above the actual count.

Had more than the expected number of votes been cast here, it would have about equalled the 1940 Roosevelt-Willkie race when this county counted 12,869 ballots.

A VOICE of confidence, expressed several days before Tuesday election by Ashville's Guy G. Cline, newly-elected prosecuting attorney, was verified by the results.

Cline was making inquiries in Circleville in regard to office space. However, the new prosecutor declared this was done only in the event he was elected.

The county's new legal aide said he would meet with the commissioners soon to discuss possibilities of an office in the courthouse.

One rabbid Republican in the county watched his party suffer serious defeat, but he had a joke for it.

In a hasty call to the sheriff's office Wednesday, Charles Carter, highway employe and weather observer, said the Scioto's waters had risen 10-feet since Tuesday night. Inquired the sheriff:

"Whatsa matter, heavy rains up north?"

"Heck no," came Carter's answer, "it's all the Republicans jumping in the river."

County politicians—elected and defeated alike—were back in their offices Thursday morning showing few signs of Tuesday's strain at the polls.

MOST ADMITTED, however, that they had spent the biggest part of Wednesday in bed getting

ONLY TRUMAN REALLY KNOWS

Right Predictors Smile; 'Experts' Seek Answer

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Two college professors who predicted President Truman's victory smiled in satisfaction today about their prophecy while three professional public forecasters still smarted under their wrong guesses.

The comparatively unknown professors—F. A. Pearson and W. I. Myers, both of Cornell university—had their predictions rejected by several leading national publications, but saw their forecasts come true.

Dr. George Gallup, Archibald Crossley and Elmo Roper, who gave ample margin of victory to New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, are launching campaigns to find out why they missed.

Professors Pearson and Myers predicted on Sept. 1 that "President Truman will win in November if the price level is high." They added:

"Lessons in history show that the public tends to vote for the continuation of administrations that have been in power during prosperous times and to vote against the incumbent administration when depression marks the approach of election time."

GALLUP, Crossley and Roper admitted they don't yet know what went wrong.

They admitted the only one who knows the answer best is Harry S. Truman, the seer from Missouri.

For it was President Truman, the man whom the "experts" said never had a chance, who proved he is the best of all public-opinion experts. He's in the White House again.

No Pigs In Pokes Wanted By Most Voters In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4—Election results on special issues showed that Ohioans still are willing to vote money for the things in which they believe—but that they refuse to buy a pig in a poke.

Most of the 334 bond issues, totaling $149,220,769, and the 769 local tax levies carried. However, Champaign Countians, whose Urbana courthouse burned down last year, refused to vote $1,120,000 for a new one. Ashland voted down a half-million dollar improvement program.

Pickaway Countians voted down both of two countywide proposals. One would have given new buildings at the Fairgrounds while the second would repair bridges washed away during an early Summer flash flood in Walnut Township.

School bond issues and levies carried in Columbus, Chillicothe, Oberlin, Salem, Niles, Delaware, Xenia, Ada, Galena, Bedford, Newton, Lebanon, Zanesville and in some Pickaway County townships.

Columbus approved a 56 instead of a 40-hour week for fire-

Tojo Verdict Is Awaited

TOKYO, Nov. 4 — The Allied Far East tribunal reconvened here today and began rendering its lengthy verdict in the war crimes trial of 25 former Japanese leaders.

The opening session of the proceedings prompted counsel for the top defendant, Pearl Harbor Premier Hideki Tojo, to predict that "the judgment is going to be heavy."

The attorney, George Blewett of Philadelphia, said this was indicated by the stress laid in the initial passages of the 1,000-page judgment on phases relating to alleged conspiracy against world peace and mistreatment of war prisoners.

Europe Hearing Of New Chance For Big 4 Talk

LONDON, Nov. 4 — The election of President Truman revived reports in Europe today of a possible meeting of the American chief executive with Premier Stalin and British and French government heads.

The political writer of The London Daily Express, who related new talk of the confab of the Big Four high command, explained that no steps have been taken to arrange such a meeting but said such a session cannot be ruled out.

The press in France generally agreed that the Truman victory gives enormous strength of the hand of the United States in international affairs.

The French feel that the American election will speed formation of a United States of Europe and the conclusion of a North Atlantic Defense Pact.

Western Germans generally hailed the results as assuring a continuance of U. S. foreign policy guaranteeing the rehabilitation of Germany.

Italians felt the development augurs well for future Italo-American relations.

City Votes Bring Demos Win In Ohio

Republicans Lose All Way Around

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4 — Democrats again cashed in on their big-city appeal to elect Frank J. Lausche governor and to give Ohio's 25 electoral votes to President Truman.

The Republicans, as usual, carried most of the rural counties, but the Democrats won where winning counted the most.

The President's edge in the eight largest counties was nearly 85,000—but he carried the state by only 14,000. Thomas E. Dewey, who carried Ohio four years ago, carried 65 of the 88 counties Tuesday, but it just wasn't enough.

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, who beat Lausche two years ago, captured 53 counties Tuesday, but lost all eight of the big ones, including the former Republican strongholds of Hamilton (Cincinnati) and Franklin (Columbus). In them Lausche's margin was about 198,000, while he carried the state by about 250,000.

Thomas Refuses To Testify On Wage 'Kickbacks'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Rep. Parnell Thomas, (R) N. J., refused today to testify before a federal grand jury investigating charges that he received salary "kickbacks" from his congressional office employes.

Thomas appeared at the federal courthouse this moning for his appointment with the grand jury, but his attorney, William H. Collins, said the congressman would not testify.

Alex Campbell, assistant attorney general, said that the government has no further witnesses to present before the grand jury in the Thomas case.

The next step will be the study of statutes which Thomas may be charged with violating and a decision by the grand jury on whether to hand down an indictment.

Democrats Start Filing Expenses

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4 — Two newly elected Democratic state officials were the first to file their expense statements with the secretary of state as required by law today.

They were the new secretary of state, Charles F. Sweeney of Wakeman, who listed $215 in contributions and $340 expenses; and Herbert S. Duffy of Columbus, the new attorney general, who listed contributions of $1295 and expenditures of $1543.

Demos Set To Make Good On Farm Platform Promise

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Triumphant Democrats prepared today to make good on a pledge to write a plantime-to-harvest farm aid program.

Agriculture Secretary Brannan is a down-the-line supporter of the platform on which President Truman and members of Congress waged their successful campaigns.

Brannan, who stumped the nation in an active campaign, is credited with a major share in helping to swing farmer votes behind the Truman-Barkley banner.

As such he is certain to remain in the cabinet during Mr. Truman's second term. His post will make him the key man in carrying out the party's pledge of an all-out effort to maintain continued farm prosperity.

COMMENTING on the election results, Brannan said:

"Now there is opportunity to repair the damage done by the 80th Congress and to strengthen, improve and perfect farm programs to better serve both producers and consumers."

SENIORITY TO TELL TALE

GOP To Lose Control Over Major Committees

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 — Victory-flushed Democrats prepared today to replace the Republicans in every post of power and authority on Capitol Hill.

The decisive Democratic majorities in the Senate and House made forecasting new committee chairmen and floor leaders the No. 1 sport at the capitol, even among gloomy Republicans still dazed by the election results.

A Democratic spokesman predicted that seniority would guide the selection of leaders, as it has in the past.

Official decisions must await the formal organization of Congress in January, but observers believe the leadership of the Democratic 81st Congress will shape up like this:

Senate majority leader—Sen. Lucas (D) Ill., who was minority whip last session, is favored to succeed Vice President-Elect Barkley as his party's floor leader.

SPEAKER of the house—Rep. Rayburn (D) Texas, who was speaker before the Republican landslide of 1946, is expected to return to that job, considered by some to be the second most important in the government.

House majority leader—Rep. McCormack (D) Mass., appears to have this job clinched. He was minority whip of the House last session.

House UnAmerican Activities Committee—Rep. Wood (D) Ga., is expected to take over from Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., as chairman of this famous investigating body.

House Ways and Means Committee—Rep. Doughton (D) N. C., probably will go back to his old job as chairman of this body, which formulates tax legislation. He would replace Rep. Knutson (R) Minn.

Senate Finance Committee — Sen. George (D) Ga., is slated to again become chairman. He would replace Sen. Milikin (R) Colo.

The plane, an F-80 Shooting Star, belonged to the 36th fighter Wing at Fuerstenfeldbruck.

Washington Set For Celebration

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Nov. 4—President Truman today was speeding on his triumphant trip back to Washington, determined to extend his broad social program.

The presidential special pulled out of Independence, at 9 a. m. (EST). Several hundred persons were at the station to bid the President farewell. Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, acompanied him.

President Truman's special train, returning from Independence, Mo., to Washington D. C., is scheduled to make a stop in Chillicothe at 12:17 a. m. In the past, such stops have lasted about 10 minutes while the train is serviced.

The chief executive still was humble in his role of a fighting President even in the first flush of his stunning upset political victory at the polls Tuesday.

The President will arriye back in Washington at 11 a. m. (EST) tomorrow to be greeted by a huge homecoming victory celebration.

Mr. Truman and his family will ride to the White House in an automobile procession down Washington's historic Pennsylvania Avenue which has been decked out in bunting and banners for the occasion.

City officials said they plan to make the homecoming bigger than the reception given President Roosevelt after his third-term victory in 1940 and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower upon his return from Europe.

Meanwhile, the White House announced it has been flooded with a terrific deluge of congratulatory messages pouring in from all over the world.

Atom Controls To 'Bring War'

PARIS, Nov. 4—Soviet Russia turned down today the Western Nations' plan for atomic energy control and conjured up the spectre of a new conflict with its "blood, sweat and tears."

Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky told the UN General Assembly that the Canadian control plan approved by the UN Political Committee represented a "sword of Damocles" held by the United States.

He renewed his appeal for acceptance of the Soviet proposal which provides for simultaneous destruction of atom bombs and institution of international control and scrutiny.

Vishinsky hinted again that Russia knows all it needs to know about atomic energy and said:

"The control envisaged (in the Canadian plan) would create new hotbeds of dissension. It would present new threats to internal security in the world of nations."

VISHINSKY said that the proposed international organ of control implies possession as a means of defense. He asked rhetorically whether the control body is to be backed by armed forces in states under control adding:

Diplomats See Smoother Sailing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—President Truman's election was expected in diplomatic quarters today to give a new drive to U. S. foreign policy. It seems evident that:

1. With Democratic control of House and Senate, future Marshall Plan appropriations will come through with greater alacrity than could have been hoped for under Republican leadership.

2. United States adherence to a North Atlantic Alliance will be facilitated.

3. International tariff reduction policies and cooperation in world trade agreements will be more readily assured.

U.S. Would Pull Teeth From UN Zion Sanctions

PARIS, Nov. 4—The United States moved today to take the teeth out of an Anglo-Chinese resolution providing for sanctions against Israel.

Authoritative sources said that the new American strategy had been "cleared through Washington,' indicating that it had President Trumans approval.

American Delegate Philip C. Jessup told the United Nations Security Council that the U. S. favors certain amendments to the British-sponsored 'tough" resolution which the Jews have condemned.

Jessup proposed the dropping of specific references to economic and other sanctions against Israel under Article 41 of the charter. A UN source said that this would mean "a complete reshaping" of the British proposal.

TRUMAN'S reported greenlight to the Americans in Paris was interpreted as his first major act of foreign policy after his reelection.

Jessup's suggestion does not constitute a withdrawal of support of the Anglo-Chinese move, which called on the Jews to give up gains made in recent fighting with the Arabs, or face sanctions.

But it did open the way for considerable tempering of the proposal, by narrowing the limits under which sanctions would be applied.

Reliable sources said that Secretary Marshall fully approved the new U. S. amendment and submitted it to President Truman, in view of the latter's reported notice to the American delegation to withdraw backing of the sanctions proposal.

GOP To Lose Control Over Major Committees

These top-level posts are likely to go to Sen. Connally (D) Tex., and Rep. Bloom (D) N. Y., both of whom held them in the last Democratic Congress. However, the bipartisan approach to foreign policy will continue, with Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., playing an important part in all decisions. Rep. Eaton (R) N. J., has represented the House.

Appropriations Committees—Chairmanship of these bodies, which control the national purse strings, is slated to go to Sen. McKellar (D) Tenn., 79-year-old dean of the Senate, and Rep. Cannon (D) Mo. Both held these jobs prior to 1946. Sen. Bridges (R) N. H., and Rep. Tabor (R) N. Y., were the 80th Congress chiefs.

Energy Commission to resume work on a formula for international atomic control.

Vishinsky charged that the United States controlled the political committee and that the majority over which America wields power intends to "hold a sword of Damocles over the heads of peoples of the world—or at least as long as they think they have this sword of atomic energy."

He asserted that if the Canadian resolution wins assembly approval the "state which now controls atomic weapons would control the life and destinies of other states even more than the United States presently is doing."

In his 90-minute last-ditch plea for acceptance of the Soviet plan, Vishinsky declared that the U. S. is attempting to evade international atom control at all costs.

In implying the possibility of conflict if the Canadian plan is adopted, Vishinsky warned that "the people of the world would pay with their sweat, blood and lives."

He termed the Soviet plan a "big step forward" and insisted the Canadian proposal was "made out of general phrases and abstract formulas which will result in failure and fiasco."

France meanwhile announced its support of the Canadian resolution.

India's chief delegate presented an amendment proposing a resumption of work by the Atomic Energy Commission which already has been approved by the political committee.

19 Airmen Die In B-29 Crash

TAMPA, Nov. 4 — MacDill Field authorities reported today that a B-29 bomber enroute from England to Florida crashed in the Azores late yesterday, killing 19 Air Force men and severely injuring another.

The big bomber crashed into the ocean about 500 miles offshore after taking off from the Lagens air base.

The plane was one of 29 bombers returning to MacDill field from England, where their crewmen and mechanics have undergone a three-and-a-half month training tour.

out of Cuyahoga (Cleveland) county alone with a margin of 50,000 votes.

The Republicans lost ground all the way around. Four years ago, President Roosevelt, in losing the state by 12,000 votes, won only 14 counties while President Truman won 23. Lausche, who won only 18 both in losing in '44 and in winning two years ago, carried 35 this time.

Lausche proved a far better vote getter than the President. In Franklin County, for instance, Dewey won over Truman by nearly 14,000—but Lausche ran 24,000 ahead of Herbert.

That meant that at least 38,000 of 190,000 voters in the county scratched their ballots for the next governor.

Lausche held every one of the 18 counties he won two years ago and in addition picked up 17 more. Truman, on the other hand, failed to carry Clark, Stark and Lorain Counties, which went for President Roosevelt in 1944.

However, the President did carry Pickaway, Brown, Hocking, Knox, Lawrence, Lucas, Mercer, Monroe, Ottawa, Scioto, Shelby and Wyandot, which went for Dewey four years ago.

Herbert's '46 counties which went to Lausche were Pickaway, Ashtabula, Dark, Erie, Fairfield, Franklin, Greene, Hamilton, Hocking, Lake, Lawrence, Lucas, Mercer, Ottawa, Richland, Scioto and Stark.

Drugless Health!

NO MATTER how long you have been suffering from stomach, kidney and rheumatic distress, and what drugs you have tried before, you can, now, hope for relief if you take GEO-MINERAL. With your eyes SEE the results seven days after you start taking it.

DRUGGISTS, Chemists cannot make GEO-MINERAL. It comes from the earth—Nature's laboratory. Contains NO dope, NO alcohol, NO oil. ONLY Nature's minerals—the oldest, most reliable remedy for rheumatism, arthritis, kidney and stomach ailments.

Wonder Minerals

FOR THOUSANDS of years sufferers, on advice of doctors, go to mineral springs to get cure, or relief. The late President Roosevelt used to go to Warm Springs in Georgia. He was helped or would not have gone there regularly twice a year.

WE HAVE all heard of the miraculous springs of Lourdes, France, and famous Thronion in ancient Greece, where, according to legend Hercules, the god of eternal strength and youth, drank its waters and bathed to be forever young.

IF YOU ARE a sufferer, and can not go to the mineral springs, try GEO-MINERAL which contains a blend of the same minerals that can be found at the world's best springs. The minerals in it may work miracles.

Amazing Results

WATCH your elimination from your bowels two or three days after you start using GEO-MINERAL. The waste, black as coal, will break away and you will SEE it! Also examine your urine. You may see impurities—poisonous waste—coming out of your kidneys, and feel the relief. Be sure to watch for all this to realize the priceless value of GEO-MINERAL.

GEO-MINERAL is not a physic, and does not interfere with the foods in the intestines. It gets down to the root, cleaning and purifying, throwing away poisons — gas, toxins and bloating. Not like physics, oils and cathartics do, but in a Natural, harmless, safe way.

100% Guaranteed!

WE URGE you to try GEO-MINERAL. Go to your drug store NOW and get one bottle. Use it seven days. If you are not 100 per cent satisfied, we will refund your money in full.

TRY IT! It may be the remedy you NEED! . . . and making the best investment for your health. It may do wonders for you—make you feel, eat, sleep, work and enjoy life better.

mestic wires were in operation in the White House communications room and they have brought in over 3,000 congratulatory messages.

More than 50,000 jubilant farmers from the Missouri countryside where he was born and raised gave Mr. Truman a shouting sendoff here on his triumphant return to the White House.

Energy Commission to resume work on a formula for international atomic control.

Vishinsky charged that the United States controlled the political committee and that the majority over which America wields power intends to "hold a sword of Damocles over the heads of peoples of the world—or at least as long as they think they have this sword of atomic energy."

He asserted that if the Canadian resolution wins assembly approval the "state which now controls atomic weapons would control the life and destinies of other states even more than the United States presently is doing."

In his 90-minute last-ditch plea for acceptance of the Soviet plan, Vishinsky declared that the U. S. is attempting to evade international atom control at all costs.

In implying the possibility of conflict if the Canadian plan is adopted, Vishinsky warned that "the people of the world would pay with their sweat, blood and lives."

He termed the Soviet plan a "big step forward" and insisted the Canadian proposal was "made out of general phrases and abstract formulas which will result in failure and fiasco."

France meanwhile announced its support of the Canadian resolution.

India's chief delegate presented an amendment proposing a resumption of work by the Atomic Energy Commission which already has been approved by the political committee.

Implement Firm Is Incorporated

Incorporation papers for the Hill Implement Co., of Circleville were filed this week with the secretary of state in Columbus by Attorney Tom A. Renick.

Herschel T. Hill of 123 East Franklin street, was named as agent of the firm. He also was listed as an officer along with Almeda M. Hill and Kenneth H. Hill.

19 Airmen Die In B-29 Crash

TAMPA, Nov. 4 — MacDill Field authorities reported today that a B-29 bomber enroute from England to Florida crashed in the Azores late yesterday, killing 19 Air Force men and severely injuring another.

The big bomber crashed into the ocean about 500 miles offshore after taking off from the Lagens air base.

The plane was one of 29 bombers returning to MacDill field from England, where their crewmen and mechanics have undergone a three-and-a-half month training tour.

City Votes Bring Demos Win In Ohio

out of Cuyahoga (Cleveland) county alone with a margin of 50,000 votes.

The Republicans lost ground all the way around. Four years ago, President Roosevelt, in losing the state by 12,000 votes, won only 14 counties while President Truman won 23. Lausche, who won only 18 both in losing in '44 and in winning two years ago, carried 35 this time.

Lausche proved a far better vote getter than the President. In Franklin County, for instance, Dewey won over Truman by nearly 14,000—but Lausche ran 24,000 ahead of Herbert.

That meant that at least 38,000 of 190,000 voters in the county scratched their ballots for the next governor.

Lausche held every one of the 18 counties he won two years ago and in addition picked up 17 more. Truman, on the other hand, failed to carry Clark, Stark and Lorain Counties, which went for President Roosevelt in 1944.

However, the President did carry Pickaway, Brown, Hocking, Knox, Lawrence, Lucas, Mercer, Monroe, Ottawa, Scioto, Shelby and Wyandot, which went for Dewey four years ago.

Herbert's '46 counties which went to Lausche were Pickaway, Ashtabula, Dark, Erie, Fairfield, Franklin, Greene, Hamilton, Hocking, Lake, Lawrence, Lucas, Mercer, Ottawa, Richland, Scioto and Stark.

High School Band Books Thursday Night Showing

Circleville high school marching band, recuperating still from its severe workout during the Circleville Pumpkin Show, has been prepping vigorously this week.

The organization is to give a half-hour concert in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum Thursday night preceding opening of the Alumni Basketball League season.

Truman Eberly, director, said the band wo uldegibn playing at begin at 7 p. m.

The band is to accompany the CHS football team to Washington C. H. for the final game on Circlevilles schedule Nov. 12.

Circleville Booster Club is sponsoring the trip, having chartered two busses for band members.

The 60-piece Circleville musical organization is to share halftime honors with the 102-piece Washington band. Delores Elsea, drum major, will lead the CHS band, trailed by Majorettes Jackie Smith, Sue Brown, Marlene Mancini, Mary Ellen Reid and Joan Wilkinson.

ARRIVING in New York on a business trip is the Marquess of Milford Haven, whose name has been linked romantically with Princess Margaret Rose and who has also been frequently seen squiring Sharman Douglas, daughter of the United States ambassador, in London. (International) men—but the firemen themselves wanted it. They like the day-on-day-off plan better than they did the 40-hour, five-day week.

Coshocton voters refused to vote a million dollars for schools; Mt. Vernon turned down $1,130,000 for new school buildings, and a similar $1,478,000 issue met defeat at Sidney.

Ashland rejected fast time and neighboring Mansfield voted approval for a $2.25 million school bond issue and pay raises of 29 to 45 percent for police and firemen.

Thorne Named By Masons Here

James H. Thorne of Williamsport was elected worshipful master Wednesday evening in a reorganization meeting of Pickaway lodge No. 23 of F and AM. He replaced W. E. Hilyard.

A slate of seven other officers were chosen to head the lodge for the next year. They are:

J. Arthur Sark, senior warden; George Skaggs, junior warden; George E. Roth, secretary; George Schaub, treasurer; John A. Evans, senior deacon; George Mallett, junior deacon; and Clifton Shook, tyler.

tain farm income on a parity with rising operating costs.

2. Broadened soil conservation and crop insurance program. (To date the latter has been used experimentally only).

3. An improved distribution system and development of a stable export market for farm products.

4. Adequate financing of the school lunch program and diversion of surplus foods to low income families where necessary.

5. Continued expansion of rural electrification. (At latest report about 65 percent of the nation's six million farms were electrifield).

6. Strengthening of all farm credit programs.

7. Stepped-up research to improve farm practices and find new uses for farm products.

Biggest question on Circleville streets and in many courthouse offices Thursday was:

"What happened?" and "Where did Truman get all his votes?"

And if the nation's letter-writers follow what many folks in Circleville claim they intend to do—then election predicter Roper, Crossley and Gallup will spend the next year under stacks of "Hee-Haw" notes.

Drugless Health!

NO MATTER how long you have been suffering from stomach, kidney and rheumatic distress, and what drugs you have tried before, you can, now, hope for relief if you take GEO-MINERAL. With your eyes SEE the results seven days after you start taking it.

DRUGGISTS, Chemists cannot make GEO-MINERAL. It comes from the earth—Nature's laboratory. Contains NO dope, NO alcohol, NO oil. ONLY Nature's minerals—the oldest, most reliable remedy for rheumatism, arthritis, kidney and stomach ailments.

Wonder Minerals

FOR THOUSANDS of years sufferers, on advice of doctors, go to mineral springs to get cure, or relief. The late President Roosevelt used to go to Warm Springs in Georgia. He was helped or would not have gone there regularly twice a year.

WE HAVE all heard of the miraculous springs of Lourdes, France, and famous Thronion in ancient Greece, where, according to legend Hercules, the god of eternal strength and youth, drank its waters and bathed to be forever young.

IF YOU ARE a sufferer, and can not go to the mineral springs, try GEO-MINERAL which contains a blend of the same minerals that can be found at the world's best springs. The minerals in it may work miracles.

Amazing Results

WATCH your elimination from your bowels two or three days after you start using GEO-MINERAL. The waste, black as coal, will break away and you will SEE it! Also examine your urine. You may see impurities—poisonous waste—coming out of your kidneys, and feel the relief. Be sure to watch for all this to realize the priceless value of GEO-MINERAL.

GEO-MINERAL is not a physic, and does not interfere with the foods in the intestines. It gets down to the root, cleaning and purifying, throwing away poisons — gas, toxins and bloating. Not like physics, oils and cathartics do, but in a Natural, harmless, safe way.

100% Guaranteed!

WE URGE you to try GEO-MINERAL. Go to your drug store NOW and get one bottle. Use it seven days. If you are not 100 per cent satisfied, we will refund your money in full.

TRY IT! It may be the remedy you NEED! . . . and making the best investment for your health. It may do wonders for you—make you feel, eat, sleep, work and enjoy life better.

Colon Illustrations

THE COLON is one of the most important organs of our body. The following illustrations show the colon in various forms, as one's condition in health may be. You may ask: How is my colon?

THE IDEAL COLON. A person in perfect health possesses a colon like this — firm and regular, with well functioning muscle.

CONSTIPATION is the cause of this atonic abnormal condition of this colon. IMPORTANT: Keep colon free from poisonous waste matter.

SPASTIC CONSTIPATION—Pinching down of the descending colon. This condition often caused by over use of harsh cathartics, physics.

Eire's Plan To Leave England Stirring Talk

LONDON, Nov. 4—The world remains engrossed with the menacing problems of Berlin and Palestine.

But in Dublin—and in one corner of London at least—the paramount question of the moment is the determination of Eire to secede from the British Commonwealth of nations, a desire and a decision that seem likely to reach fulfillment yet this month.

The statesmen are finding it extraordinarily difficult to find any answer to this question:

"Can Eire shake herself entirely free from the Crown and exist successfully as a 'foreign' nation inside the borders of the British Isles?"

With the spirit that characterizes disputes between Londoners and Dubliners, the Irish are being accused of everything from impetuosity to stubborness.

What the government of Premier John A. Costello plans to do is to break the last tie-line with the commonwealth by which the king nominally appoints envoys and signs treaties.

In actual practice, this tenuous link means little.

On the face of it, the separation decree will make Eire as foreign to England as is Albania, for example. It will preclude forever the possibility of a unified Ireland, for as The Manchester Guardian put it:

"ULSTERMEN are the last people in the world to join a foreign state."

Britain feels that the Irish are tossing away with frivolous lightness advantages that are invaluable.

Under the agreement by which the free state remained loosely in the commonwealth, the Irish needed no passports to Britain. They were not required to register as aliens, needed no working permits, had the right to vote and could run for parliament.

Also in time of war they could rally to the Crown with a courage and enthusiasm that were outstanding in both world wars.

While many prominent figures such as Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery are from Northern Ireland, others of a more rebellious nature rose to heights of glory in defending king and flag despite their government's neutrality.

The approaching secession has brought about a strange combination of emotions.

Irish war volunteers have never been forgotten by England. But at the same time realization of what is coming has reminded the British of something else.

That of course is the neutrality which Eamon De Valera preserved so carefully during the war against the Nazi regime.

British military officials had to be on guard constantly against the possibility of a German parachute or naval invasion of Southern Irelnd which would have brought the Germans to within only the distance of St. George's Channel from England and Wales.

The British remember also what this neutrality meant to Dublin in the way of war profits and luxurious food. Few things aroused greater English-Irish animosity than the publication of Dublin hotel menus showing virtually everything obtainable at a time when the English were on iron rations beneath the falling bombs.

Dixie Leaders Pledge Civil Rights Battle

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 4—A continued battle against President Truman's civil rights legislation was pledged today by Southern leaders.

Reaction varying from warm satisfaction to cool silence greeted the chief executive's startling upset in winning the general election.

States' Rights Presidential Candidate J. Strom Thurmond pledged his cooperation to Mr. Truman and urged America to "close ranks." But he declared:

"Our crusade served to awaken the nation. Regardless of the outcome of the election, the fight will be continued against federal encroachment on states' autonomy."

The South Carolina governor and his runningmate, Mississippi Gov. Fielding L. Wright, captured 38 electoral votes by winning in Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina.

The loss of the four states was the only defection in Southern ranks from a sweep by Mr. Truman, whose nomination had been opposed unanimously below the Mason-Dixon Line at the July Democratic national convention.

Fremont Cop Dies In Chase

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4 — Cleveland police were ordered to be on the lookout today for one of two men involved in the death of a rookie policeman in Fremont.

The officer, Patrolman George Biggs, 24, was crushed to death in downtown Fremont yesterday when the two swerved their automobiles against an approaching truck after Biggs had leaped on their running board.

One of the two men, wanted in connection with the holdup and abduction of a Cleveland service station attendant, was fatally wounded by Fremont police after the car crashed into a shed. The second escaped.

Vice Cleanup Now Promised

RAVENNA, Nov. 4—The Good Government League today forecast a cleanup of organized gambling in Portage County as a result of the election to the sheriff's office of Democrat Roy Garrett.

Garrett defeated his opponent, Sheriff George Shields, by 2,843 votes. Garrett was endorsed by the Good Government League, which denounced Shields for his attitude toward gambling.

South Says Farm Vote Won Election

Civil Rights Battle Still On

ATLANTA, Nov. 4—Southern Politicians hailed President Truman's election victory as a triumph for the farmers but remained determined in their efforts to continue their fight against the chief executive's civil rights proposals.

States' Rights Leader J. Strom Thurmond, governor of South Carolina, declined to make any comment on the election. So did his vice-presidential runningmate, Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi.

But sentiment, generally, of the South's supporters of the States' Rights faction was that the battle against the civil rights proposals will continue.

Sen. Burnet R. Maybank, (D) S. C., said President Truman's victory was won by the farmers of the nation, but added his opposition to the civil rights program. He declared:

"The civil rights proposals will now be fought where they should be fought, which is in the Senate, and not in hotel rooms and political conventions."

Sen. Lister Hill, (D) Ala., pointed to the victory of Mr. Truman as an indication that the people want to perpetuate what he called the "great new deal program."

"Husbands, Wives, and Marriage"

Maybe you read that survey published recently in a national magazine, entitled "Husbands, Wives, and Marriage."

It showed that among happily married couples, those who criticized themselves outnumbered those who criticized the other person. Among unhappily married couples, it was just the opposite—each one tended to criticize the other.

That's the way it is in our town, as I guess it is in yours. Criticism, whether it's of a wife's taste for hats, or a husband's taste for pipe tobacco and an evening glass of beer or ale, is a sure start towards unhappiness.

As for what made happy marriages, companionship within the home was listed most important of all. And from where I sit, a husband and wife who can spend an evening by the fire—with nothing more exciting than a mellow glass of beer, and a friendly conversation—are a truly well-matched couple!

BOTH SIDES VEHEMENT

Feud Over Comic Books Revived In Women's Meet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Comic books, it seems, no longer need to be comic at all. But the question is—have they become tragic?

The reason for raising the question seems to be a revival of the eternal feud between moral-guiding and money-making. Obviously, it is possible to belong to both.

The problem is that while everybody agrees that crime does not pay, still certain so-called comic books about why crime does not pay do pay. The argument is over whether the moral lesson or the criminal technique—both stressed in many comic books—is more intriguing to the small fry.

A couple of experts on opposing sides of the fence had their say about it the other day here before a session of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. The ladies, who were delving into the intricacies of how youth can be best educated and most wisely entertained, reserved judgment on the subject.

QUITE APART from the comic book controversy, the clubwomen vigorously had at top-ranking representatives of the radio, television and movie industries.

They spoke sharply about bad English, filthy programs and bawdy pictures in the various fields. They gave names and dates, although now and then their references were somewhat vague until the industry representatives stepped into the breach by supplying the name or date of the offending picture or program.

Probably it is not divulging a trade secret to report that the standard answer of such industry unfortunates was either "Yes, Ma'am," or "No, Ma'am."

The comic book debate, however, departed somewhat from the general routine, in that two men fought it out, verb-to-verb, while the ladies listened.

The issue was whether current crime comic books tend to increase or decrease juvenile delinquency. Taking one side was Henry E. Schultz of the Association of Comic Magazine Publishers. Taking the other side was James Bennett, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Bennett said quite flatly that many of the comic books "appeal to the primitive instincts in people." He charged that "no one familiar with these magazines would contend they are character building instruments.'

SCHULTZ was equally vehement, and just as quick to document his case. He told the ladies that his industry, at present, was the victim of a nationwide hysteria. He said that crime comic books were read by far more adults than children. He mentioned that some 60 million such magazines were sold every month, adding that one of the best-sellers was a little booklet entitled "Crime Doesn't Pay." Its sale, however, did pay, he conceded.

To prove the virtue of the aforementioned magazine, Schultz said that its publisher had received more than 60,000 letters. And, he added triumphantly, many of them came from inmates of prisons who wrote "if we only had had access to your magazine before we were sent here!"

Unfortunately, for the drama of the announcement, Bennett smirked slightly at this point—seeming to imply that there might be a double meaning behind such pious testimonials.

But we've got the answer, right here waiting for you. We've got a brand-new Buick Fireball engine that will fit right in your prewar car—any Buick built since 1937.

In 12 to 15 hours—at a cost only slightly above a thorough overhaul—we can take the weary engine out of your Buick and put in a brand-new power plant.

These engines are built on the same assembly line as the engines in 1948 Buicks. They bring you all the 1948 engine features. They're all new—new pistons, rings, pins. New clutch and carburetor. New spark plugs, new wiring. Everything listed in the panel shown is yours in this "power package."

Best of all, there's no waiting. Engine output at the factory is running ahead of car production—so your 1948 Fireball engine is waiting for you right now.

BOTH SIDES VEHEMENT

Feud Over Comic Books Revived In Women's Meet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Comic books, it seems, no longer need to be comic at all. But the question is—have they become tragic?

The reason for raising the question seems to be a revival of the eternal feud between moral-guiding and money-making. Obviously, it is possible to belong to both.

The problem is that while everybody agrees that crime does not pay, still certain so-called comic books about why crime does not pay do pay. The argument is over whether the moral lesson or the criminal technique—both stressed in many comic books—is more intriguing to the small fry.

A couple of experts on opposing sides of the fence had their say about it the other day here before a session of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. The ladies, who were delving into the intricacies of how youth can be best educated and most wisely entertained, reserved judgment on the subject.

QUITE APART from the comic book controversy, the clubwomen vigorously had at top-ranking representatives of the radio, television and movie industries.

They spoke sharply about bad English, filthy programs and bawdy pictures in the various fields. They gave names and dates, although now and then their references were somewhat vague until the industry representatives stepped into the breach by supplying the name or date of the offending picture or program.

Probably it is not divulging a trade secret to report that the standard answer of such industry unfortunates was either "Yes, Ma'am," or "No, Ma'am."

The comic book debate, however, departed somewhat from the general routine, in that two men fought it out, verb-to-verb, while the ladies listened.

The issue was whether current crime comic books tend to increase or decrease juvenile delinquency. Taking one side was Henry E. Schultz of the Association of Comic Magazine Publishers. Taking the other side was James Bennett, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Bennett said quite flatly that many of the comic books "appeal to the primitive instincts in people." He charged that "no one familiar with these magazines would contend they are character building instruments."

SCHULTZ was equally vehement, and just as quick to document his case. He told the ladies that his industry, at present, was the victim of a nationwide hysteria. He said that crime comic books were read by far more adults than children. He mentioned that some 60 million such magazines were sold every month, adding that one of the best-sellers was a little booklet entitled "Crime Doesn't Pay." Its sale, however, did pay, he conceded.

To prove the virtue of the aforementioned magazine, Schultz said that its publisher had received more than 60,000 letters. And, he added triumphantly, many of them came from inmates of prisons who wrote "if we only had had access to your magazine before we were sent here!"

Unfortunately, for the drama of the announcement, Bennett smirked slightly at this point—seeming to imply that there might be a double meaning behind such pious testimonials.

HARD-PRESSED CHINA

ASSESSMENTS of the capture of Mukden by Communist forces in China are varied, but there is little doubt that the loss of the city is a serious blow to the Chiang government. In a war as long and huge as the Chinese civil war, no battle should be called decisive until its after-effects have been observed. But the loss of Mukden could well be decisive as to the political fortunes of the weakened Chiang regime.

Only a few months ago, when the elections were held under the new constitution of China, there was no serious conjecture of any outcome except the election of Chiang Kai-shek as president. Today there is much speculation in many quarters as to how long Chiang can continue to hold power amid continuing financial and military reverses. It is only talk, but it may be significant.

There may also be wishful thinking on the part of persons who are eager to see the United States extend more help for the fight against Communism in China, but who find it hard to regard aid to a corrupt and ineffective government as consistent with American ideals and common sense.

It is true that Communism in China is rapidly growing stronger and that in the long run it may be as inimical to our interests as Communism in Europe. But as long as the political situation in Nanking remains unchanged we are faced with a fine problem of how to combat Communism and also to help the Chinese people.

DRAFT REJECTIONS

OF MEN now being called up for military service, 72 per cent are failing to meet physical requirements, Selective Service has announced. This is a startling figure, but the conditions are unusual.

Men now being called are 24 and 25 years old, which means that most of them were liable to draft during the war. Since those now called were not in service in the war, there is a high proportion of men who were unfit for service at that time or who had deferment for employment or other reasons. Therefore it is not surprising that a large number are now physically unqualified.

Physicians are finding that about 10 per cent of the men rejected for World War II service because of physical disability are now able to serve. Some have recovered in these years from previous disabilities. Also perhaps health in general is improving.

Some enthusiast is always foretelling the coming of a golden age. Wonder if we'll know it when it arrives?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Even so wise a man as William McFee can wright a paragraph such as this:

"Max Eastman, ex-editor of The Masses and now on Reader's Digest, mentions Gitlow's 'non-Bolshevik courage.' Far be it from us to disparage the lost sheep who return, weary and footsore, from the Muscovite mountains, but this praise of one exradical by another becomes tiresome. It is becoming a regular profession, well paid too, to renounce Communism and then write a book about it."

The reference is to Benjamin Gitlow's important book, "The Whole of Their Lives," one of the best analyses of the psychology of the Communists that has ever been written. True, Ben Gitlow was once a leader of the Communist movement, not only of America, but of the world. McFee, in his review, wonders how Gitlow knows what he says. He wants confirmation. Anyone familiar with the history of the Communist movement would acknowledge Gitlow as a primary and reliable source. Much that he writes about he lived.

However, what McFee says in effect is that we must distrust all ex-radicals; we must assume that they switch for the money in it. He does not believe in the admission of error, in penitence, in the burning zeal of the convert. He does not forgive. Were we to accept his view, this would indeed be a tough world; the sinner would have to continue to sin lest a cynic suspect his virtue as being the product of lust. No truth could be spoken lest one be suspected of being sanctimonious.

Actually the case of Ben Gitlow is one of hard and bitter suffering and sacrifice for what he believes to be the truth. I have known Gitlow intimately. I have marveled at his courage and his strength in avoiding benefits from his apostasy.

While he and his family were living in dingy quarters, he saw many of his former colleagues, men who could make every twist and turn of the Stalinist line, bask in the sum of White House favors; he saw many of them—still members of the party—rise to high rank in the Federal Government, in Hollywood, in newspapers and magazines, in our universities, in some instances even in business.

His first book, "I Confess," is a textbook on the Communist movement and its methods. This book brought him $500 plus $3,500 from the Cosmopolitan magazine for the serial rights, which, Mr. McFee notwithstanding, is not big pay for leaving the Communist Party. I know of Communist writers who receive more than that for a single story from a so-called capitalist magazine in which they advocate the party line.

After he wrote that book, as was customary in those days, he was boycotted by the left-wing editors of magazines and he found it difficult to get lecture work. Practically every opponent of the Communists in the 1930's suffered from similar boycotts. In fact, as recently as last Winter, I knew of editors turning down anti-Communist, anti-Russian articles for "capitalist" magazines as reactionary, Red-baiting and elusive.

Gitlow one day came to see me and said that he had taken a job at $20 a week making some kind of electrical appliance. Gitlow is one of the three or four best informed men on Communism in America, an authority on both theory and practice, but

DIET AND HEALTH

Cramping of the Leg Muscles

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the most common complaints of elderly people is severe cramping of the leg muscles, particularly at night.

A recent study of the cause and possible methods of overcoming the condition indicates that quinine may prove a valuable remedy in these cases. In all, 20 patients were studied. Ten of these patients were suffering from diabetes, five were being treated for varicose veins, and in four there was serious interference of the circulation through the arteries.

It was found that many of these patients were suffering from a vitamin deficiency, particularly the older ones. However, treatment with vitamins alone did not relieve the cramps.

Capsules Prepared

In carrying out a study on these 20 patients, capsules were prepared containing quinine sulfate, while similar capsules containing prostigmine and a substance which had no effect at all, were also prepared.

The patients were first given either the capsules containing the inactive preparation or the quinine. As soon as relief of the muscle cramps was obtained by the use of the quinine, the inactive preparation was substituted for it. The quinine capsules were given after each meal.

It was found that the quinine given at bedtime was enough in itself in most cases to prevent the development of the muscle cramps. In other instances, the quinine was given both before supper and at bedtime.

Inactive Preparation

On the other hand, when the patients were given the inactive preparation, no effect on the muscle cramps was noted. This would seem to indicate quite definitely that the quinine has a definite and specific action in relieving muscle cramps. The prostigmine had no effect on the muscle cramps, although it did seem to aid in dilating the blood vessels so that circulation was improved.

It was interesting to note that in those patients who had arthritis, the prostigmine seemed to have a beneficial effect in relieving the pain and stiffness in the joints.

It would appear that the quinine acts directly upon the muscles in overcoming the muscle cramps.

The patients for the most part noticed that the muscle cramps at night were most severe following unusual activity during the day. Hence, those who have muscle cramps might do well to avoid strenuous activities.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. A. A.: Does examination of the urine always show the presence of Bright's disease?

Answer: Bright's disease is a general term covering several types of kidney disturbance. Examination of the urine will aid in revealing when kidney disorder is present. Blood chemistry is also helpful.

MARRY for MONEY

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

SINCE HER marriage Gail had been asked to serve on several committees. The idea did not appeal to her and she had asked Brad if she must, and been told that, naturally, she need not, it was up to her. But Alexandria remarked that Gail had no choice.

"Sooner or later," she said, "you will, I trust, take over my responsibilities." She had listed the organizations in which she was actively interested, "all," she concluded, "sponsored by the Spencers since their inception."

Gail had said that she didn't know how, she had had no experience, and Alexandria had silenced her with a silky "Surely you can learn?"

Alexandria believed that to be a Spencer by birth, or to become one through marriage, entailed certain civic and philanthropic obligations. But Gail felt herself a Spencer only on sufferance, relegated, properly, to the background, and assumed, moreover, that even were her personal interest aroused, any deviation from Alexandria's ideas would be criticized. But she had outwardly conformed to keep the precarious peace, attending meetings and benefit parties, and appearing, early in the spring, at a fashion show, conscious that her coworkers regarded her as an outsider. She had overheard two recent Social Registered brides discussing her. "Of course," said one, "she models the clothes divinely. Why not? She was a professional."

But several of them had been professionals also, some for fun, some for bigger game, some because a living must be earned. Yet their position apparently differed from hers.

In a way, it was an amusing switch. If Gail's provocative figure and face no longer appeared on magazine covers or posing against a backdrop of cacti and swimming pools, she still looked from the advertising pages, the proceeds given to charity, or from the rotogravure sections . . . not as Rusty Rogers, who earned her living, but as Mrs. Bradford Spencer, who sponsored, gratis, this or that product for the benefit of this or that charity.

She had not, she saw, set down the hour of today's engagement so, still determined to occupy herself with trivial things, she looked in her address book and dialed the number of the committee chairman at whose home the tea would be given. She reached a wrong number, apologized, hung up, and after a moment dialed again. But the same voice replied, with comprehensible exasperation. It was a practical demonstration of the fact that you can make the same mistake twice.

Gail sat back and looked at the black and white face of the dial. She dialed again, singularly concentrated upon the simple procedure, and was rewarded by the fruity voice of Mrs. Parkinson's butler, confirming the fact that she had made contact with the Parkinson residence. Mrs. Parkinson was not at home, he informed her, but the hour set for the tea was four o'clock.

Gail hung up and sat back feeling curiously limp. It was extraordinary how much significance she attached to a footling, routine error. Anyone could be forgiven for dialing, say, the numeral three instead of eight . . . anyone in a hurry or preoccupied. But she hadn't been in a hurry, and to do this twice was more than woolgathering.

She rose, no longer irresolute.

Walking down the hall, raising her hand to tap on Alexandria's closed door, she remembered telling Sam that it was time she assumed responsibility. Brave words, spoken in anger and shame. Yet, bringing her father to the Spencer house and then turning the problem he represented over to Dr. Evans and Brad had been as far as she had gone, and it was not far enough.

"Who is it?" asked Alexandria.

"Gail."

"Come in."

Alexandria was sitting in a big chair by the window, and Brad was across the room, on the end of the chaise longue. Evidently Gail had interrupted an argument, for Alexandria was flushed, her lips set in a thin, rouged line, while Brad wore his look of conscious patience. But he smiled at Gail, said, "Hello, darling," and made room for her beside him.

Alexandria said briskly, "I'm glad you came. I was about to ask Brad to fetch you. He's told me of his plans for your father. I dare say they'll serve but, frankly, I think it's throwing good money after bad."

Gail said, "I think so too, as things now stand." She addressed her husband directly. "At first it seemed a wonderful solution," she told him, "but it isn't, really."

"Why not?" he asked quietly.

"It's too easy." She looked at Alexandria. "I remember you once said you always suspected a too-easy solution. This was one—once we had his consent, which wasn't hard. He's at the end of his rope, ill, and I think, afraid. The rest is a matter of financing, sending him west with a nurse, putting him in an expensive place, and leaving it up to the doctors."

"What else can you do?" Alexandria asked sharply. "Not that I'm credulous enough to believe that he can be cured; yet, as long as he remains under supervision, he's harmless, I suppose."

"Dr. Evans believes he can be cured, if he wishes to be," Gail said.

"Never . . . at that age."

"I don't know that I'd want to be," said Gail slowly, "in his case. Call his drinking anything you please, an escape, an excuse, an illness . . . what incentive has he? Who cares whether he's cured or not?"

Alexandria lifted her eyebrows, but Brad's hand closed over Gail's and held it. He said softly, "Good girl."

"What do you mean," demanded Alexandria, "who cares?"

"We don't," Gail said stubbornly, "none of us . . . except in so far as it would save us embarrassment." She looked at Brad. "I don't mean you," she added.

"Never mind me," he said promptly. "I've told you I hate waste. But you've been arriving at some conclusions. What are they?"

"I've let you do it all, Brad," she said evenly, "and you've been fine. But your first attempt failed and this one will too, because he can't achieve anything alone."

"Alone?" repeated Alexandria querulously. "With the best medical attention in the country?"

"He'll still be alone."

Alexandria laughed shortly. It was like a small, sharp bark and devoid of merriment. She said, "I never expected to see you turn sentimental."

"I'm not sentimental," Gail began hotly, but Brad said, "Wait a moment, Gail, what, exactly, do you want to do?"

"First of all I want to pay for his care," Gail said. "I know that's quibbling because it would come out of the money you gave me, Brad. Still, I'd feel better about it. Secondly, isn't there a nearby place to which he could go—where I could see him—so that he'd come to feel that someone took an interest, beyond the obvious one?"

"There are a dozen such places," Alexandria answered promptly, "within one to three hours of New York. But if he were admitted to one and you went to see him there, you'd defeat the entire purpose. Someone's bound to talk."

"I spoke to Dr. Evans," Gail said, "that first morning. Alcoholism is a disease, not a disgrace. What if people do talk? Oh, I admit I was afraid of that originally." She turned to Brad. "I felt so insecure myself," she said, "not through any fault of yours or anyone's. Just my own. But now I realize that whatever people say it can't reflect upon you or your grandmother, unfavorably. How could it, when you accept the situation and do everything in your power to correct it? As for me, my father can't affect me either. I'm responsible for and to myself."

"Fiddlesticks," Alexandria remarked. "You talk as if you had succumbed to some particular sloppy form of so-called religion."

Gail didn't answer. She asked, "Brad, what do you think? It's not that I've discovered any filial feeling. I haven't. It goes beyond that."

"You must do as you wish," he said, "and there's a very good sanitarium in Connecticut. I know the medical director."

"Oh, fine," said Alexandria bitterly. "A short run from Ridgefield! And I know Dr. Manners, too. He's dined here."

Gail braced herself. She said, "I'm afraid I must ask you to keep out of this, Mrs. Spencer."

"Sooner or later," said Alexandria, rallying, "you were bound to become insolent."

THE ANSWER, QUICK!

1. Do turtles breathe under water?
2. What two United States presidents were born west of the Mississippi river?
3. What are "crocodile tears"?
4. What is grammatically wrong with this statement: "She divided the candy between the four children"?
5. Who wrote a book called Look Homeward Angel?

MODERN MANNERS

A woman wears a hat and gloves when she goes shopping or calling.

IT HAPPENED TODAY

On Nov. 4, 1930, Franklin D. Roosevelt was re-elected governor of New York state. The next year, 1931, on the same date, Japan was cited before the League of Nations for trespassing in Manchuria. In 1677, this date, William, Prince of Orange, married Mary of England, his cousin. They later became king and queen of England. Auguste Rodin, famous French sculptor, was born on Nov. 4, 1840.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Chevalier Jackson, eminent laryngologist, and Robert (Bob) Considine, sports writer and biographer, are due for Many Happy Returns of the day salutations on this Nov. 4.

Ex-manicurist Ex-director

JOBS UPON A TIME

Jane Wyman, screen actress, was born Sarah Jane Folks in St. Joseph, Mo. Her mother was a Parisienne actress, and at eight years old Jane was starring in school plays. Later, in Hollywood, she tried being a manicurist, hairdresser and secretary, but no job was satisfactory until she persuaded an agent to get her a role in My Man Godfrey. Cain and Mabel and Smart Blonde followed. The Lost Weekend, One More Tomorrow, Cheyenne and Magic Town are some of Jane's more recent pictures. She's hoping for an Oscar for her part in Johnny Belinda.

Jolly Alan Hale (born Rufus Alan MacKahan) in Washington, D. C., was a motion picture director in 1928 although formerly an actor. When the talkies came in he gave up directing for acting again. He did notable jobs in Stella Dallas and Robin Hood, and more recently in Cheyenne, My Girl Tisa and My Wild Irish Rose. Hale has been married for 30 years to Gretchen Hartman, his leading lady in old Biograph studio days. They have a boy and a girl.

YOUR FUTURE

You may get some good opportunities now, so contact others, take trips. This next year will be one in which it would be wise to conserve your resources, and be extra careful to avoid accidents. Influences rife on this date tend to make the person born now somewhat erratic and antagonistic to authority.

IT'S BEEN SAID

NEW YORK—The kind of businessman who warms the cockles of our black heart is Martin Tytell, whose two floors of office in downtown Manhattan are cluttered with typewriters in all stages of construction and destruction.

His specialty is unique typewriters—with keys in Cherokee, Siamese or Korean, for example—and in the course of work he does business with many mystery-story writers who, these days, evidently have forsaken the goosequill pen completely

Mr. Tytell, a small, amiable, balding gentleman, tries from time to time to humor these eccentric customers by inventing plots built around typewriters for them. For one, he suggested a story built around a typewriter on which the letter "I" is attached by a secret wire to a gun which would fire pointblank at the typist when he pressed the key

"The writer," warned Tytell, "shouldn't be a columnist, or he will kill himself in the very first act and spoil the story." Touche, Mr. Tytell, and how are you, as Jimmy Durante would say.

The strange and wonderful requests for assorted keyboards are indeed strange and wonderful. Martin figures the most unusual was from a guy who wanted a machine with nothing but question marks on all the keys.

He made up the typewriter as ordered, but promptly reported it to the FBI. Then, last week he was asked to produce a keyboard for "the language of the insects," as he puts it so romantically. Actually, he created new type face and keys which wrote "male" or "female" after each insect described, the difference in genders being a great pre-occupation of scientists.

* * * *

A ONETIME GI FROM BROOKLYN, Martin has co-operated with one Comdr. August Dvorak in developing typewriters for one-armed writers, left-handed or right-handed.

His was a typical Army career; when his unusual talent as a typewriter and language man was discovered at the outset of his tenure, he promptly was put to work shoveling coal.

Martin is an ingenuous, adaptable man, and he is not bitter about shoveling coal. He developed a frequency of shoveling that he may yet turn to profit with a furnace company in which he and a friend have an interest.

Tytell has a collection of antique typewriters—the one on which this is written is its only important missing component—that he has tried to donate to a museum here in town, but the museum wrote back that it would accept them only if he sent along $150,000 to build a wing in which to house them.

I am fond of the way he met and married his wife. He saw her working in an office where he serviced typewriters, in his youth, and hired her away. "I told her if she did a good job for me, I'd marry her," he says, and four years later, sure enough, he did.

IF YOU WERE GIVEN TO LISTENING to your radio incessantly, back in the Thirties, you may remember the name of Conrad Thibault, who seemed always to appear (but probably didn't) on all those semi-classical programs that opened with the mooing of a cow or the playing of a Victor Herbert song.

If you have since wondered "Whatever became of Thibault?" I am now in the remarkable position of being able to tell you. He has been making concert tours—and the unusual note about it all is what he has been doing in his spare time.

While on tour and scheduled to stay in a city for a few days, he hunts out a church in the neighborhood that may be small, struggling, and perhaps trying unsuccessfully to buy a new roof.

Thibault thereupon offers to give a free concert for the church, to the astonishment of numerous clerics, who perhaps have faith in their fellow man but realize that these are not days for getting something for nothing.

Mr. Thibault, now back in New York and eyeing a possible return to radio warily—he hates those standardized programs where he sings Student Prince selections or Trees each Sunday night—reports that the basic reason for his maneuvers is a fight against Communism.

So long as the churches flourish and persons worship God, he figures, there can be no Communism in this country. The number of mortgages Conrad has paid off is astounding; they have been happily burned in towns from Canada to Texas.

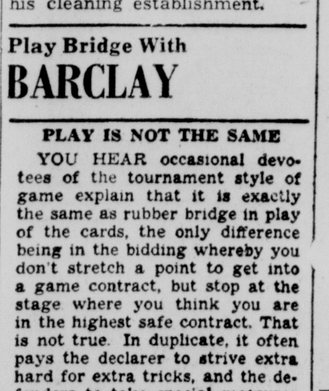
In his spare time, the energetic Mr. Thibault is a judge at the Miss America beauty contests in Atlantic City. Amateur psychologists may put all these assorted facts together and draw whatever conclusions they choose.

Play Bridge With

BARCLAY

PLAY IS NOT THE SAME

YOU HEAR occasional devotees of the tournament style of game explain that it is exactly the same as rubber bridge in play of the cards, the only difference being in the bidding whereby you don't stretch a point to get into a game contract, but stop at the stage where you think you are in the highest safe contract. That is not true. In duplicate, it often pays the declarer to strive extra hard for extra tricks, and the defenders to take special measures to prevent them.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♦	Pass	Pass	2 ♣
Dbl	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
Pass	3 ♣

In rubber bridge, plenty of people with those North-South cards, would wriggle themselves somehow into a No Trump game contract, and then weep salty tears over their futile straining to make it. But in the duplicate tournament, most North-South pairs got into the same 3-Clubs.

West led the diamond A and then the 5 to the Q. The club 3 lost to the A and West then made a bold try to cut down South's gleanings. He underled the heart A, with the 3. That brought the 2, 7 and 10, and made South think East had the A, which he was holding to kill off the dummy's K.

South could have made an extra trick now, if he had overtaken the club 10 with the K, used the Q to clear trumps and led a heart toward the K. So doing, he could surely reach the dummy to use his diamond honors for two spade discards, so that his losers would be only one each in hearts, diamonds and clubs.

But if he tried this and East held the heart A, as appeared certain, he couldn't ever re-enter the dummy to play the diamonds, and would lose two tricks in spades. So he led the diamond K, which East ruffed and he over-ruffed. He re-entered dummy with the club 9 to the 10 and led the diamond J for one spade discard. That method of play limited him to one spade loser, exactly making his contract. But West's bold play had enabled his side to take one more trick than anybody else against a 3-Clubs contract, giving his pair a fine score.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

How should South play for 3-No Trumps after West leads the heart K?

HARD-PRESSED CHINA

ASSESSMENTS of the capture of Mukden by Communist forces in China are varied, but there is little doubt that the loss of the city is a serious blow to the Chiang government. In a war as long and huge as the Chinese civil war, no battle should be called decisive until its after-effects have been observed. But the loss of Mukden could well be decisive as to the political fortunes of the weakened Chiang regime.

Only a few months ago, when the elections were held under the new constitution of China, there was no serious conjecture of any outcome except the election of Chiang Kai-shek as president. Today there is much speculation in many quarters as to how long Chiang can continue to hold power amid continuing financial and military reverses. It is only talk, but it may be significant.

There may also be wishful thinking on the part of persons who are eager to see the United States extend more help for the fight against Communism in China, but who find it hard to regard aid to a corrupt and ineffective government as consistent with American ideals and common sense.

It is true that Communism in China is rapidly growing stronger and that in the long run it may be as inimical to our interests as Communism in Europe. But as long as the political situation in Nanking remains unchanged we are faced with a fine problem of how to combat Communism and also to help the Chinese people.

DRAFT REJECTIONS

OF MEN now being called up for military service, 72 per cent are failing to meet physical requirements, Selective Service has announced. This is a startling figure, but the conditions are unusual.

Men now being called are 24 and 25 years old, which means that most of them were liable to draft during the war. Since those now called were not in service in the war, there is a high proportion of men who were unfit for service at that time or who had deferment for employment or other reasons. Therefore it is not surprising that a large number are now physically unqualified.

Physicians are finding that about 10 per cent of the men rejected for World War II service because of physical disability are now able to serve. Some have recovered in these years from previous disabilities. Also perhaps health in general is improving.

Some enthusiast is always foretelling the coming of a golden age. Wonder if we'll know it when it arrives?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Even so wise a man as William McFee can wright a paragraph such as this:

"Max Eastman, ex-editor of The Masses and now on Reader's Digest, mentions Gitlow's 'non-Bolshevik courage.' Far be it from us to disparage the lost sheep who return, weary and footsore, from the Muscovite mountains, but this praise of one exradical by another becomes tiresome. It is becoming a regular profession, well paid too, to renounce Communism and then write a book about it."

The reference is to Benjamin Gitlow's important book, "The Whole of Their Lives," one of the best analyses of the psychology of the Communists that has ever been written. True, Ben Gitlow was once a leader of the Communist movement, not only of America, but of the world. McFee, in his review, wonders how Gitlow knows what he says. He wants confirmation. Anyone familiar with the history of the Communist movement would acknowledge Gitlow as a primary and reliable source. Much that he writes about he lived.

However, what McFee says in effect is that we must distrust all ex-radicals; we must assume that they switch for the money in it. He does not believe in the admission of error, in penitence, in the burning zeal of the convert. He does not forgive. Were we to accept his view, this would indeed be a tough world; the sinner would have to continue to sin lest a cynic suspect his virtue as being the product of lust. No truth could be spoken lest one be suspected of being sanctimonious.

Actually the case of Ben Gitlow is one of hard and bitter suffering and sacrifice for what he believes to be the truth. I have known Gitlow intimately. I have marveled at his courage and his strength in avoiding benefits from his apostasy.

While he and his family were living in dingy quarters, he saw many of his former colleagues, men who could make every twist and turn of the Stalinist line, bask in the sum of White House favors; he saw many of them—still members of the party—rise to high rank in the Federal Government, in Hollywood, in newspapers and magazines, in our universities, in some instances even in business.

His first book, "I Confess," is a textbook on the Communist movement and its methods. This book brought him $500 plus $3,500 from the Cosmopolitan magazine for the serial rights, which, Mr. McFee notwithstanding, is not big pay for leaving the Communist Party. I know of Communist writers who receive more than that for a single story from a so-called capitalist magazine in which they advocate the party line.

After he wrote that book, as was customary in those days, he was boycotted by the left-wing editors of magazines and he found it difficult to get lecture work. Practically every opponent of the Communists in the 1930's suffered from similar boycotts. In fact, as recently as last Winter, I knew of editors turning down anti-Communist, anti-Russian articles for "capitalist" magazines as reactionary, Red-baiting and elusive.

Gitlow one day came to see me and said that he had taken a job at $20 a week making some kind of electrical appliance. Gitlow is one of the three or four best informed men on Communism in America, an authority on both theory and practice, but

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the most common complaints of elderly people is severe cramping of the leg muscles, particularly at night.

A recent study of the cause and possible methods of overcoming the condition indicates that quinine may prove a valuable remedy in these cases. In all, 20 patients were studied. Ten of these patients were suffering from diabetes, five were being treated for varicose veins, and in four there was serious interference of the circulation through the arteries.

It was found that many of these patients were suffering from a vitamin deficiency, particularly the older ones. However, treatment with vitamins alone did not relieve the cramps.

Capsules Prepared

In carrying out a study on these 20 patients, capsules were prepared containing quinine sulfate, while similar capsules containing prostigmine and a substance which had no effect at all, were also prepared.

The patients were first given either the capsules containing the inactive preparation or the quinine. As soon as relief of the muscle cramps was obtained by the use of the quinine, the inactive preparation was substituted for it. The quinine capsules were given after each meal.

It was found that the quinine given at bedtime was enough in itself in most cases to prevent the development of the muscle cramps. In other instances, the quinine was given both before supper and at bedtime.

Inactive Preparation

On the other hand, when the patients were given the inactive preparation, no effect on the muscle cramps was noted. This would seem to indicate quite definitely that the quinine has a definite and specific action in relieving muscle cramps. The prostigmine had no effect on the muscle cramps, although it did seem to aid in dilating the blood vessels so that circulation was improved.

It was interesting to note that in those patients who had arthritis, the prostigmine seemed to have a beneficial effect in relieving the pain and stiffness in the joints.

It would appear that the quinine acts directly upon the muscles in overcoming the muscle cramps.

The patients for the most part noticed that the muscle cramps at night were most severe following unusual activity during the day. Hence, those who have muscle cramps might do well to avoid strenuous activities.

MARRY for MONEY

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

SINCE HER marriage Gail had been asked to serve on several committees. The idea did not appeal to her and she had asked Brad if she must, and been told that, naturally, she need not, it was up to her. But Alexandria remarked that Gail had no choice.

"Sooner or later," she said, "you will, I trust, take over my responsibilities." She had listed the organizations in which she was actively interested, "all," she concluded, "sponsored by the Spencers since their inception."

Gail had said that she didn't know how, she had had no experience, and Alexandria had silenced her with a silky "Surely you can learn?"

Alexandria believed that to be a Spencer by birth, or to become one through marriage, entailed certain civic and philanthropic obligations. But Gail felt herself a Spencer only on sufferance, relegated, properly, to the background, and assumed, moreover, that even were her personal interest aroused, any deviation from Alexandria's ideas would be criticized. But she had outwardly conformed to keep the precarious peace, attending meetings and benefit parties, and appearing, early in the spring, at a fashion show, conscious that her coworkers regarded her as an outsider. She had overheard two recent Social Registered brides discussing her. "Of course," said one, "she models the clothes divinely. Why not? She was a professional."

But several of them had been professionals also, some for fun, some for bigger game, some because a living must be earned. Yet their position apparently differed from hers.

In a way, it was an amusing switch. If Gail's provocative figure and face no longer appeared on magazine covers or posing against a backdrop of cacti and swimming pools, she still looked from the advertising pages, the proceeds given to charity, or from the rotogravure sections . . . not as Rusty Rogers, who earned her living, but as Mrs. Bradford Spencer, who sponsored, gratis, this or that product for the benefit of this or that charity.

She had not, she saw, set down the hour of today's engagement so, still determined to occupy herself with trivial things, she looked in her address book and dialed the number of the committee chairman at whose home the tea would be given. She reached a wrong number, apologized, hung up, and after a moment dialed again. But the same voice replied, with comprehensible exasperation. It was a practical demonstration of the fact that you can make the same mistake twice.

Gail sat back and looked at the black and white face of the dial. She dialed again, singularly concentrated upon the simple procedure, and was rewarded by the fruity voice of Mrs. Parkinson's butler, confirming the fact that she had made contact with the Parkinson residence. Mrs. Parkinson was not at home, he informed her, but the hour set for the tea was four o'clock.

Gail hung up and sat back feeling curiously limp. It was extraordinary how much significance she attached to a footling, routine error. Anyone could be forgiven for dialing, say, the numeral three instead of eight . . . anyone in a hurry or preoccupied. But she hadn't been in a hurry, and to do this twice was more than woolgathering.

She rose, no longer irresolute.

Walking down the hall, raising her hand to tap on Alexandria's closed door, she remembered telling Sam that it was time she assumed responsibility. Brave words, spoken in anger and shame. Yet, bringing her father to the Spencer house and then turning the problem he represented over to Dr. Evans and Brad had been as far as she had gone, and it was not far enough.

"Who is it?" asked Alexandria.

"Gail."

"Come in."

Alexandria was sitting in a big chair by the window, and Brad was across the room, on the end of the chaise longue. Evidently Gail had interrupted an argument, for Alexandria was flushed, her lips set in a thin, rouged line, while Brad wore his look of conscious patience. But he smiled at Gail, said, "Hello, darling," and made room for her beside him.

Alexandria said briskly, "I'm glad you came. I was about to ask Brad to fetch you. He's told me of his plans for your father. I dare say they'll serve but, frankly, I think it's throwing good money after bad."

Gail said, "I think so too, as things now stand." She addressed her husband directly. "At first it seemed a wonderful solution," she told him, "but it isn't, really."

"Why not?" he asked quietly.

"It's too easy." She looked at Alexandria. "I remember you once said you always suspected a too-easy solution. This was one—once we had his consent, which wasn't hard. He's at the end of his rope, ill, and I think, afraid. The rest is a matter of financing, sending him west with a nurse, putting him in an expensive place, and leaving it up to the doctors."

"What else can you do?" Alexandria asked sharply. "Not that I'm credulous enough to believe that he can be cured; yet, as long as he remains under supervision, he's harmless, I suppose."

"Dr. Evans believes he can be cured, if he wishes to be," Gail said.

"Never . . . at that age."

"I don't know that I'd want to be," said Gail slowly, "in his case. Call his drinking anything you please, an escape, an excuse, an illness . . . what incentive has he? Who cares whether he's cured or not?"

Alexandria lifted her eyebrows, but Brad's hand closed over Gail's and held it. He said softly, "Good girl."

"What do you mean," demanded Alexandria, "who cares?"

"We don't," Gail said stubbornly, "none of us . . . except in so far as it would save us embarrassment." She looked at Brad. "I don't mean you," she added.

"Never mind me," he said promptly. "I've told you I hate waste. But you've been arriving at some conclusions. What are they?"

"I've let you do it all, Brad," she said evenly, "and you've been fine. But your first attempt failed and this one will too, because he can't achieve anything alone."

"Alone?" repeated Alexandria querulously. "With the best medical attention in the country?"

"He'll still be alone."

Alexandria laughed shortly. It was like a small, sharp bark and devoid of merriment. She said, "I never expected to see you turn sentimental."

"I'm not sentimental," Gail began hotly, but Brad said, "Wait a moment, Gail, what, exactly, do you want to do?"

"First of all I want to pay for his care," Gail said. "I know that's quibbling because it would come out of the money you gave me, Brad. Still, I'd feel better about it. Secondly, isn't there a nearby place to which he could go—where I could see him—so that he'd come to feel that someone took an interest, beyond the obvious one?"

"There are a dozen such places," Alexandria answered promptly, "within one to three hours of New York. But if he were admitted to one and you went to see him there, you'd defeat the entire purpose. Someone's bound to talk."

"I spoke to Dr. Evans," Gail said, "that first morning. Alcoholism is a disease, not a disgrace. What if people do talk? Oh, I admit I was afraid of that originally." She turned to Brad. "I felt so insecure myself," she said, "not through any fault of yours or anyone's. Just my own. But now I realize that whatever people say it can't reflect upon you or your grandmother, unfavorably. How could it, when you accept the situation and do everything in your power to correct it? As for me, my father can't affect me either. I'm responsible for and to myself."

"Fiddlesticks," Alexandria remarked. "You talk as if you had succumbed to some particular sloppy form of so-called religion."

Gail didn't answer. She asked, "Brad, what do you think? It's not that I've discovered any filial feeling. I haven't. It goes beyond that."

"You must do as you wish," he said, "and there's a very good sanitarium in Connecticut. I know the medical director."

"Oh, fine," said Alexandria bitterly. "A short run from Ridgefield! And I know Dr. Manners, too. He's dined here."

Gail braced herself. She said, "I'm afraid I must ask you to keep out of this, Mrs. Spencer."

"Sooner or later," said Alexandria, rallying, "you were bound to become insolent."

Play Bridge With

PLAY IS NOT THE SAME

YOU HEAR occasional devotees of the tournament style of game explain that it is exactly the same as rubber bridge in play of the cards, the only difference being in the bidding whereby you don't stretch a point to get into a game contract, but stop at the stage where you think you are in the highest safe contract. That is not true. In duplicate, it often pays the declarer to strive extra hard for extra tricks, and the defenders to take special measures to prevent them.

Dbl	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
Pass	3 ♣

In rubber bridge, plenty of people with those North-South cards would wriggle themselves somehow into a No Trump game contract, and then weep salty tears over their futile straining to make it. But in the duplicate tournament, most North-South pairs got into the same 3-Clubs.

West led the diamond A and then the 5 to the Q. The club 3 lost to the A and West then made a bold try to cut down South's gleanings. He underled the heart A, with the 3. That brought the 2, 7 and 10, and made South think East had the A, which he was holding to kill off the dummy's K.

South could have made an extra trick now, if he had overtaken the club 10 with the K, used the Q to clear trumps and led a heart toward the K. So doing, he could surely reach the dummy to use his diamond honors for two spade discards, so that his losers would be only one each in hearts, diamonds and clubs.

But if he tried this and East held the heart A, as appeared certain, he couldn't ever re-enter the dummy to play the diamonds, and would lose two tricks in spades. So he led the diamond K, which East ruffed and he over-ruffed. He re-entered dummy with the club 9 to the 10 and led the diamond J for one spade discard. That method of play limited him to one spade loser, exactly making his contract. But West's bold play had enabled his side to take one more trick than anybody else against a 3-Clubs contract, giving his pair a fine score.

Mrs. Edmund Landis gave a report of third annual convention of the Columbus Diocesan Council of Catholic women which was held in the Neil House, Columbus, October 16 and 17. Mrs. Henry Butts, Mrs. Margaret Shadley and Mrs. Landis were the delegates from St. Joseph's parish. The business session was held Saturday and after attending a Pontifical High Mass at the Cathedral, Sunday morning a breakfast was served in the Neil House at which the guest speaker was Msgr. Sheen who spoke of the "Three Marys": The Blessed Mother, Mary Magdalene and Mary, the mother of James, the beloved disciple. His appearance at the breakfast was a surprise, not having been scheduled. He was the speaker at the opening of the Erskine Lectures at St. Mary's of the Springs College that Sunday afternoon.

The president appointed Mrs. Lester Hall as chairman of a bake sale to be held in the near future and Mrs. Frank Susa to chairman a rummage sale later in the month.

Members of the committee who served refreshments at the close of the meeting were Mrs. Forrest Short, Mrs. William Goeller, Mrs. Willis Green, Mrs. Jack Lake and Mrs. Mark Howell.

Assisting Mrs. Austin Wilson to entertain the members of Emmett Chapel WSCS was Mrs. Philip Wilson. Eighteen members were present and five visitors. Refreshments were served at the close of the business hour.

"America the Beautiful' was the opening song for the session of the Von Bora Society of Trinity Lutheran church, Mrs. C. C. Schwartz led the devotionals. Mrs. Gladden Troutman, gave the topic "Seeing Afar With God".

Mrs. Charles Walters gave a report of the convention, held at Fremont and Miss Lottie Walters reported $91.41 received from thank offering boxes. Members were asked to bring cookies and cakes to be packed in individual boxes to be sent to the Werule Home in Richmond, Ind. Games and toys also will be packed in other boxes to be sent to the home for distribution by the matron. The society voted to send $50 to the home.

Mrs. Carl Leist presented the slate of officers for the coming year; Mrs. Gladden Troutman, president; Mrs. Harold Anderson, vice-president; Mrs. Robert Norman, secretary; Mrs. Fred Brown, assistant secretary; Miss Clarissa Talbut, treasurer; Mrs. V. D. Kerns, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Harold Anderson, chaplain; Mrs. Fritz Seiverts, assistant chaplain; Miss Helen Pontious, pianist and Mrs. Ralph Ward, assistant pianist.

Rev. Mr. Troutman urged all members to attend services next Sunday to hear Rev. Mr. Oberdorfer. Plans were made to have a Christmas party at the next meeting, each member to bring one or more guests and to notify the chairman of the reservation committee not later than December 2. The committee appointed to have charge of the dining room for this meeting is Miss Bernice Cook, Mrs. Fritz Seiverts, Mrs. V. D. Kerns, Miss Helen Pontious and Mrs. Harold Anderson. Members are asked to bring gifts for the inmates of the County home, each to be wrapped and marked for man or woman.

Mrs. Carl Leist, program chairman presented the Rev. Troutman who entertained with slides depicting the work of the American Lutheran church.

Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Mrs. James Carpenter, Miss Mary Weffler, Mrs. Alice Sensenbrenner, Mrs. Harold Anderson and Miss Mary Ebert.

Mrs. Paul White was received as a new member in the society.

Worrying 'Self Sick' Said True

Kids' Doodling On Walls OKd

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 — People who say "I'm worrying myself sick" are often not exaggerating, in the opinion of one medical specialist.

Dr. Nathan W. Shock, of the U. S. Public Health Service, told the Second International Symposium on Feelings and Emotions at the University of Chicago today that worry and anxiety, if uncontrolled can lead to actual disease.

Dr. Shock caled for more intensive research to establish the mechanism whereby worry leads to disease symptoms and to disease.

Earlier, while the conference was in session in Moose heart, Ill., a noted psychiatrist warned against inhibiting children who draw and scribble pictures all over the house.

Dr. L. Van Der Horst, noted European psychiatrist from Amsterdam, Holland, says the child is fulfilling a very important function and is merely using drawing as a motor outlet. He declared:

"Between the fourth and seventh year, the drawing activities are characterized by the close ties to experience. Between the seventh and tenth years the development of the drawing of childhood reaches its highest point."

Dr. Van Der Horst failed, however, to provide a solution for payment for the damage when all the walls and wallpaper get marked up after Junior carries his doodling off a piece of paper.

Demos Hammer Way Into Ohio House, Senate

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4—Many of the recognized leaders of the Ohio legislature felt the voters' ax in Tuesday's Democartic election.

The 98th general assembly which convenes in January may be in complete control of the Democrats. The Republicans almost certainly lost control of the senate, with the Dems holding a 17-16 margin, and may have gained control of the 135-member house as well.

Control of the house will not be certain until the last contested vote is counted. The Republicans claimd 66 certain seats, with 68 needed for a majority. They hope to pick up two more in the official vote tally in close races or possibly even in recounts.

The Republicans had a 123-16 margin in the current house and a 32-4 margin in the senate. The house has been cut to 135 seats and the senate to 33 this session because of reapportionment.

The recognized leaders to fall included Sens. Stanley McKie and Kyle Brooks of Cincinnati, Evert E. Addison of Columbus, who lost by 158 votes; Ray Hildebrand of Toledo, loser by 32 votes; George C. McCandless, Robert L. Quinn, leader in the fight for strip mine control, and all four Republicans in Cleveland's six-man senatorial delegation.

Cuyahoga County elected 17 Democrats to the house, only three of them incumbents, and Summit County elected five.

Railroad rails have been made in more than 25 designs in the past 175 years.

DANGER OF NOSE-OVER in making an emergency landing is minimized if an invention by Jacob Spiegel of Philadelphia works as he hopes. His device consists of a weight that can be shifted to the tail of a light plane to hold it down during a rough or short-distance landing. Spiegel (top rear) and pilot Frank Pearson show how the weight is controlled from the cockpit. The weight moves along a rail through the fuselage (lower photo). (International)

Police Killer Suspect Nabbed

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 4—Indiana state police have captured a youth who is a suspect in the killing of a Fremont policeman.

The prisoner captured following a wild three-county chase was identified as Willard La Mar Smith, 19, of Detroit.

Indiana police pursued him after a west Indianapolis filling station operator said he drove away without paying for $2.85 worth of gasoline.

Officers said the car which the youth was driving was reported stolen at Paulding. They said they would hold Smith without charge until after checking with Ohio police.

One Fremont policeman was killed when a car driven by two bandits ran over him. One of the two bandits was killed by another policeman.

Smith was captured when his car was wrecked near Belle Union, Ind.

Court Refuses Union Fee Rule

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4 — The Ohio supreme court today refused in effect to place a ceiling on the amount a union can charge for an initiation fee.

The high court refused to admit to review the appeal of Carlos T. Osley, Cincinnati barber who complained that Local No. 49 of the AFL barbers union wanted to charge him $828 for admission to the union so he could hold his job in the Carew Tower Shop.

Osley, a barber for 14 years, continued to work when a strike was called April 17, 1946, when the establishment was an open shop. The shop then was sold and became a union shop, and Osley applied for union membership.

Osley offered a $15 initiation fee, which was rejected by the union. He then filed suit to compel the union to admit him.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

County CROP Program Meets Success, Claim

Pickaway County's Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) was believed meeting with success Thursday by the Rev. S. C. Elsea, co-chairman of the organization.

He said Curtis Bower of Pickaway Township reported more than 100 bushels of corn had been solicited from farmers in that area within the last couple days.

Township workers are urged by Rev. Elsea to begin canvassing now while farmers are in the process of harvesting their corn crop.

CROP is sponsored by Catholic Rural Life, Lutheran World Relief and Church World Service to aid the undernourished in foreign lands.

Worrying 'Self Sick' Said True

Kids' Doodling On Walls OKd

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 — People who say "I'm worrying myself sick" are often not exaggerating, in the opinion of one medical specialist.

Dr. Nathan W. Shock, of the U. S. Public Health Service, told the Second International Symposium on Feelings and Emotions at the University of Chicago today that worry and anxiety, if uncontrolled can lead to actual disease.

Dr. Shock caled for more intensive research to establish the mechanism whereby worry leads to disease symptoms and to disease.

Earlier, while the conference was in session in Moose heart, Ill., a noted psychiatrist warned against inhibiting children who draw and scribble pictures all over the house.

Dr. L. Van Der Horst, noted European psychiatrist from Amsterdam, Holland, says the child is fulfilling a very important function and is merely using drawing as a motor outlet. He declared:

"Between the fourth and seventh year, the drawing activities are characterized by the close ties to experience. Between the seventh and tenth years the development of the drawing of childhood reaches its highest point."

Dr. Van Der Horst failed, however, to provide a solution for payment for the damage when all the walls and wallpaper get marked up after Junior carries his doodling off a piece of paper.

Demos Hammer Way Into Ohio House, Senate

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4—Many of the recognized leaders of the Ohio legislature felt the voters' ax in Tuesday's Democartic election.

The 98th general assembly which convenes in January may be in complete control of the Democrats. The Republicans almost certainly lost control of the senate, with the Dems holding a 17-16 margin, and may have gained control of the 135-member house as well.

Control of the house will not be certain until the last contested vote is counted. The Republicans claimd 66 certain seats, with 68 needed for a majority. They hope to pick up two more in the official vote tally in close races or possibly even in recounts.

The Republicans had a 123-16 margin in the current house and a 32-4 margin in the senate. The house has been cut to 135 seats and the senate to 33 this session because of reapportionment.

The recognized leaders to fall included Sens. Stanley McKie and Kyle Brooks of Cincinnati, Evert E. Addison of Columbus, who lost by 158 votes; Ray Hildebrand of Toledo, loser by 32 votes; George C. McCandless, Robert L. Quinn, leader in the fight for strip mine control, and all four Republicans in Cleveland's six-man senatorial delegation.

Cuyahoga County elected 17 Democrats to the house, only three of them incumbents, and Summit County elected five.

Railroad rails have been made in more than 25 designs in the past 175 years.

DANGER OF NOSE-OVER in making an emergency landing is minimized if an invention by Jacob Spiegel of Philadelphia works as he hopes. His device consists of a weight that can be shifted to the tail of a light plane to hold it down during a rough or short-distance landing. Spiegel (top rear) and pilot Frank Pearson show how the weight is controlled from the cockpit. The weight moves along a rail through the fuselage (lower photo). (International)

Police Killer Suspect Nabbed

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 4—Indiana state police have captured a youth who is a suspect in the killing of a Fremont policeman.

The prisoner captured following a wild three-county chase was identified as Willard La Mar Smith, 19, of Detroit.

Indiana police pursued him after a west Indianapolis filling station operator said he drove away without paying for $2.85 worth of gasoline.

Officers said the car which the youth was driving was reported stolen at Paulding. They said they would hold Smith without charge until after checking with Ohio police.

One Fremont policeman was killed when a car driven by two bandits ran over him. One of the two bandits was killed by another policeman.

Smith was captured when his car was wrecked near Belle Union, Ind.

Court Refuses Union Fee Rule

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4 — The Ohio supreme court today refused in effect to place a ceiling on the amount a union can charge for an initiation fee.

The high court refused to admit to review the appeal of Carlos T. Osley, Cincinnati barber who complained that Local No. 49 of the AFL barbers union wanted to charge him $828 for admission to the union so he could hold his job in the Carew Tower Shop.

Osley, a barber for 14 years, continued to work when a strike was called April 17, 1946, when the establishment was an open shop. The shop then was sold and became a union shop, and Osley applied for union membership.

Osley offered a $15 initiation fee, which was rejected by the union. He then filed suit to compel the union to admit him.

County CROP Program Meets Success, Claim

Pickaway County's Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) was believed meeting with success Thursday by the Rev. S. C. Elsea, co-chairman of the organization.

He said Curtis Bower of Pickaway Township reported more than 100 bushels of corn had been solicited from farmers in that area within the last couple days.

Township workers are urged by Rev. Elsea to begin canvassing now while farmers are in the process of harvesting their corn crop.

CROP is sponsored by Catholic Rural Life, Lutheran World Relief and Church World Service to aid the undernourished in foreign lands.

BOYS GETTING ALL SET

Capitol Hill Now Awaits Big Inaugural Shindig

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Well, it's all over but the inaugural shouting, folks—and you'd better get your tickets now.

Unless, of course, you belong to the party that isn't particularly interested, now that the ballots have been counted.

Otherwise, don't wait around for those inauguration week reservations. Already, the Washington Board of Trade has deduced from the preliminary bids that the Capital City is going to be hit by the biggest tourist crush in its history, come Jan. 20.

In case you've forgotten, the big day itself falls on a Thursday—but that won't make much difference. According to the Greater National Capital Committee, which is more or less in charge of such celebrations, the big jam will start along about Saturday, Jan. 15, and won't be broken for at least a week or ten days.

It may even last much longer, for past history indicates that many a job-hunter comes to town during inauguration and sticks afterwards in the hope of being hired, maybe by accident, in the confusion before things settle down to normal.

IN ANY CASE, the boys are getting set for the big shebang.

Out on Capitol Hill, it hasn't been too noticeable lately. The last days of the campaign and the election itself brought some considerable excitement, but it didn't seem to affect the workmen constructing the inaugural stands in front of the Capitol Building.

The stands themselves, as yet, are nothing much to behold. They're still in the scaffold (frightful word!) stage, and there are piles of steel and lumber scattered all around. But the construction foreman has no doubt that the stands will all be come the big day.

Other inaugural preparations, understandably moving at a somewhat slower pace, pending the election outcome, were slated to go into high gear today.

Already the Board of Trade committee has set up a clearing house to make available every inch of extra space in hotels, tourist homes and private homes for the inauguration week visitors. Their plans, of course, can't account for those relatives who may drop in, unannounced.

However, committee members were quick to deny that all hotels were sold out for the big event. They have issued an emphatic statement to the effect that there still is hotel space available—but they doubt that it will last long after today.

One chief reason it still is available, according to Frank E. Weakly, president of the Washington Hotel Association, is that the various hotel managers have long forseen the possibility of an unprecedented crush during the inaugural week. As a result, they have, for some time, been accepting non-inaugural reservations on a tentative basis for that period.

FBI Agents Nab Rob Suspects

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4 — Cleveland Federal Bureau of Investigation agents today held two men wanted in connection with a daylight robbery Oct. 21 in New Haven, Conn.

The men, Thomas E. Hackley, 21, of New Haven, and Harold M. Mickel, 25, of Norwalk, were picked up by FBI agents yesterday at Norwalk on charges of illegal flight to avoid prosecution.

They will be turned over to New Haven police on charges of robbing the Congress Package Store Company of $120 in cash and a $200 check.

Frozen Food Survey Data Is Detailed

60 Pct. Believe Idea Is Good

Are frozen foods worth a premium over fresh or canned foods?

In answer to this question, 60 percent of a large group of Ohio consumers said frozen food was worth a premium over fresh foods and 40 percent said they were not.

Comparing preferences of these consumers for frozen foods to canned, R. W. Sherman, rural economist of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station, found that 77 percent of the entire group was willing to pay a premium for the frozen product with the other 23 percent unwilling to pay the premium.

When the consumers were divided into income levels it was found that only one group differed much from the average of the entire group.

This one outstanding exception was in the highest income group where only 50 percent were willing to pay the premium compared to 77 percent for the entire group. Almost all in this highest income level group, however, were willing to pay premium for fresh over canned food products.

IN FURTHER testing their preferences, consumers were asked in what form they thought they got the most for their money.

For fruits, 40 percent felt they got most for their money in frozen form, 35 percent in fresh form and 20 percent in canned form. For vegetables, 46 percent thought the most value for the money was in frozen products, 32 percent felt that fresh offered most and 22 percent felt that the canned products gave them the best dollars' worth.

Again, income level had very little effect on the answers with the exception that the highest income group showed more preference for fresh products than did the other groups.

The explanation for the slight preference of the high income group for fresh products, Sherman points out, probably lies in the availability of better fresh products in the stores where this group does its shopping.

for safety's sake

ADD THESE LIGHT TOUCHES TO YOUR HOME

Every home has its danger spots —dark places that seem to invite trouble. Why take chances when a few simple precautions like these can work wonders?

ILLUMINATE YOUR DRIVEWAY

A light on your garage will help you avoid forgotten toys, discourage prowlers, make it easier to get in and out of your drive at night.

ELIMINATE DARK HALLS

With plenty of light to see safely, you'll avoid accidents, and cheer up your home too. A 60-watt or 100-watt bulb in ceiling units will do wonders!

LEAVE A LIGHT WATCHMAN WHEN YOU'RE OUT

Dark homes invite intruders. A light in your window helps discourage them. And a light upstairs and on the front porch gives extra protection.

FBI Agents Nab Rob Suspects

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4 — Cleveland Federal Bureau of Investigation agents today held two men wanted in connection with a daylight robbery Oct. 21 in New Haven, Conn.

The men, Thomas E. Hackley, 21, of New Haven, and Harold M. Mickel, 25, of Norwalk, were picked up by FBI agents yesterday at Norwalk on charges of illegal flight to avoid prosecution.

They will be turned over to New Haven police on charges of robbing the Congress Package Store Company of $120 in cash and a $200 check.

Frozen Food Survey Data Is Detailed

60 Pct. Believe Idea Is Good

Are frozen foods worth a premium over fresh or canned foods?

In answer to this question, 60 percent of a large group of Ohio consumers said frozen food was worth a premium over fresh foods and 40 percent said they were not.

Comparing preferences of these consumers for frozen foods to canned, R. W. Sherman, rural economist of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station, found that 77 percent of the entire group was willing to pay a premium for the frozen product with the other 23 percent unwilling to pay the premium.

When the consumers were divided into income levels it was found that only one group differed much from the average of the entire group.

This one outstanding exception was in the highest income group where only 50 percent were willing to pay the premium compared to 77 percent for the entire group. Almost all in this highest income level group, however, were willing to pay premium for fresh over canned food products.

IN FURTHER testing their preferences, consumers were asked in what form they thought they got the most for their money.

For fruits, 40 percent felt they got most for their money in frozen form, 35 percent in fresh form and 20 percent in canned form. For vegetables, 46 percent thought the most value for the money was in frozen products, 32 percent felt that fresh offered most and 22 percent felt that the canned products gave them the best dollars' worth.

Again, income level had very little effect on the answers with the exception that the highest income group showed more preference for fresh products than did the other groups.

The explanation for the slight preference of the high income group for fresh products, Sherman points out, probably lies in the availability of better fresh products in the stores where this group does its shopping.

ADD THESE LIGHT TOUCHES TO YOUR HOME

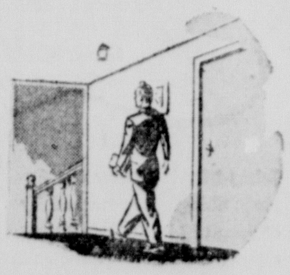
Every home has its danger spots —dark places that seem to invite trouble. Why take chances when a few simple precautions like these can work wonders?

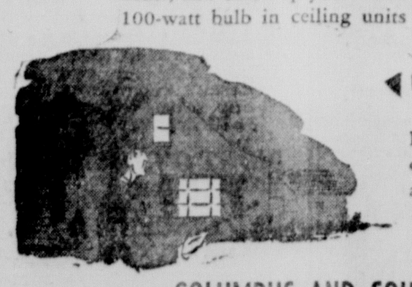
ILLUMINATE YOUR DRIVEWAY

A light on your garage will help you avoid forgotten toys, discourage prowlers, make it easier to get in and out of your drive at night.

ELIMINATE DARK HALLS

With plenty of light to see safely, you'll avoid accidents, and cheer up your home too. A 60-watt or 100-watt bulb in ceiling units will do wonders!





LEAVE A LIGHT WATCHMAN WHEN YOU'RE OUT

Dark homes invite intruders. A light in your window helps discourage them. And a light upstairs and on the front porch gives extra protection.

Labor Law Death Now Demanded

Unions Take Share Of Victory Credit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 — CIO and AFL leaders have interpreted the Democratic presidential election triumph as a "mandate" for immediate repeal of the Taft-Hartley law.

CIO President Philip Murray wired his congratulations to President Truman and said:

"This tremendous election victory for the New Deal principles which you made the cornerstone of your platform must be quickly translated into action. Clearly the people want repeal of the hateful Taft-Hartley Act."

AFL President William Green expressed hope that the Democratic-controlled 81st Congress will remove the Taft-Hartley Act from the statute books "without delay and without quibbling."

The leaders of 15 million organized workers claimed a major share of credit for the Democratic election sweep. They said it meant labor is in politics to stay.

AFL Secretary - Treasurer George Meany said the elections represented a "terrific success" for union political action. He said 15 out of 16 Senate candidates and 86 out of 105 House candidates supported by the AFL scored victories.

* * *

MEANY declared, however, that the AFL's Labor League for Political Education "is not going into politics to be the tail of anybody's party." He said the AFL would continue an independent course of rewarding its friends and defeating labor's enemies.

Meany told a news conference:

"Labor is making no pretense of trying to run the country. We don't pretend to have a smooth-running, nationwide political machine. But we made a start toward a permanent political arm for the protection of American labor."

Statehouse Will See Abundance Of New Patrons

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4—There weren't many cheerful faces in Ohio's ancient statehouse today.

Except for the workers of Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, who has been in an exceedingly small Democratic minority, and those of State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, only Republican to withstand Tuesday's Democratic Tide, there wasn't a non-civil service worker in the place who was not in danger of losing his or her job.

Even the aides of the house and senate, which had been Republican for lo, these many years, were casting anxious eyes on the returns. The Dems appeared to have captured the senate and possibly the house—and the party in power controls the patronage.

The governor's office, the office of the secretary of state, and that of the attorney general probably will be restaffed with Democrats come January. The reshuffle may go right down through the ranks of stenographers and —yes, it's true— even porters and janitors.

But one pert little thing had an answer:

"After all, good stenographers are hard to get these days."

Tarpaper Fire Burns 2-Year-Old

ASHTABULA, Nov. 4—Two-year-old Betty Kean of nearby Leon still was in critical condition today as the result of burns suffered in a fire which cost the life of her brother, William, 5.

Ashtabula general hospital authorities reported the girl has burns covering 70 percent of her body. The boy, who died six hours after the blaze Tuesday night, was burned over 80 percent of his body.

The tragedy occurred when the children set fire to some tarpaper behind the garage of the farm home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean. Mrs. Kean was burned about the hands and arms in beating out the flames.

Newest Forrestal Order Irking High Gold Braid

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Now that the campaign talk of national unity has ended, the country's newly-elected leaders soon may find themselves face to face with an urgent problem involving unity of America's armed services.

It's the problem of what to do about the situation which has Pentagon wags wisecracking that the nation's armed force unification has resulted in "triplification" instead.

Such waggishness is not wholly unwarranted, as any Washingtonian who has a speaking acquaintance with men in uniform knows. Despite the unification legislation, ancient jealousies still rage—and in the top and middle ranks, as well as on the enlisted level.

Old-line admirals, who finally have decided that the airplane is here to stay as a military factor, still consider the nation's separate air arm an upstart organization. They'll design, test, build, service, supply, fly and boss their own, thank you, mister! And they want no bloody landlubbers sending orders to their bridge, telling them when to launch their man-driven missles!

* * *

EQUALLY stiff-necked at certain levels, despite their generally-younger age and scant two-war traditions, the flyboys are flowing with ocean-spanning and world-girdling adrenalin.

In such a stimulated mood, their generals are not above suggesting that, after all, the Navy obviously now is a rather ancient service arm and should be relegated to a supply-running role in future plans.

Then, while apoplexy is having itself a field day, the Army—somewhat embittered by its eternally undramatic role—steps in and snaps out its mouthful. Although less belligerent (in this matter) than either of the other two, and willing to concede its need of both, the top infantry brass will listen only so long. Then its temper flares, too.

All of this was quietly underscored on Election Eve, when Defense Secretary James Forrestal issued an order creating an annual national defense legislative program.

It sounded innocuous and nice, and Forrestal's legislative director, Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, gave reporters to believe that it was just another natural step forward in the all-over unification program.

On paper, that's what it looks like. Actually, it amounts to a sharp hand-slapping to certain officers in all three branches of the service who have been slipping out to see their pet congressmen on the sly—and sometimes it hasn't been on the sly. During the last session, for instances, despite unification, spokesmen for all three defense arms got embroiled in open squabbles before congressional committees.

Shortly after that, Forrestal called them on the carpet, singly and in groups and read the riot act. No more of that stuff. They were cutting one another's throats, and if they didn't quit it, all three branches were liable to bleed to death financially.

Apparently he thought, at the time, that the scolding took, particularly since a legislative liaison director was appointed, and each branch was given a side door into his office, so to speak.

BUT IN THE weeks and months that followed, almost any sideline observer (including most Capitol Hill newsmen) could have told the secretary that his unofficial dressing-down had done nearly nothing — except make the separate service spokesmen more surreptitious in trying to sway their favorite solons!

It would seem that Forrestal finally tumbled, or at least finally decided to take action, for his Election Eve announcement actually amounted to an official order for the boys to get into line and quit their competitive bickering.

From now on, it said in effect, they'd settle every squabble before ever setting foot on Capitol Hill—and even then, only the designated defense liaison men would carry the ball to congress. All others would be confined to quarters.

Mrs. Sgt. Brown Resigns Force

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4—The Columbus police department had what it wanted today in the resignation of Former Sgt. Edna Brown—six times married.

Patrolwoman Brown—demoted last Oct. 25—handed in her resignation Wednesday.

Her latest trouble started early in October when she charged a former husband, Kenneth P. Brown, of the state highway department, with making threats against her.

An investigation showed she was a year over the legal age of 35 when hired. The police department failed to get her early resignation, then abolished her sergeant's job.

Police Chief Charles M. Berry said she was a good, conscientious worker in the juvenile bureau. Mrs. Brown was transferred to that department when Berry (then a captain) set it up in 1944.

Fathers Invited To Booster Meet

Circleville Booster Club members will hold an open meeting in the high school social room at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Fathers of Circleville Tiger football players are especially invited to the meeting. Pictures of the squad in action will be shown, as well as talks concerning the final Tiger encounter of the year with Washington C. H., Nov. 12.

Tiger Coaches Steve Brudzinski and Tom Bennett are to attend the meeting, and will speak briefly on the current undefeated season.

Moving pictures are to be shown by Dr. Walter Heine.

Too Many Hybrids On Market?

Corn Experts Ponder Question

The large number of the many corn hybrids sold in Ohio arises in part from the ease of making hybrid combinations by plant breeders and seedsmen, according to agronomists at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Also, there are more than necessary partly because farmers demand variety and choice in corn hybrids, as in clothes, the agronomists say..

There are now so many different brands of corn hybrids that if each competing group offered only one hybrid the total number would be large. But each must offer a comprehensive selection, and from this situation the list of purchasable hybrids lengthens in confusing proportions, they say.

More corn hybrids are offered for sale in Ohio than needed, and more will come.

NO ONE KNOWS how many of them have been exposed to such hazards as a heavy attack of cornborers, leaf aphids, grubs, rootworms, or to conditions favorable to root rots, stalk rots, leaf blight, and other diseases.

A few, U. S. 13 and Ohio M15 for example, have met and passed most of the serious hazards liable in their areas with reasonable acceptance. But for one that stays as long as these, many will come and go.

However, the agronomists ask, shall we try some of the new hybrids? Of course, for how else can progress be made?

But they suggest that the new hybrids be tried on imited acreages, and if they stay erect and healthy, no final decision should be made about them until after harvest.

Fitzsimmons And Frisch Back Again

Stars Return To Giant Fold

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Frankie Frisch and Freddie Fitzsimmons are back in the New York giants fold as coaches.

Both rose to fame on the Giants under the late John McGraw; Frisch as one of the best second basemen of all time and Fitzsimmons as the star knuckle ball artist of his day.

Frisch abandoned his $17,500 job as a baseball broadcaster to get back in a monkey suit and Horace Stoneham, Giants' president, intimated today that Frankie will do about as well coaching.

Baseball men agreed today that Manager Leo Durocher had made a 10-strike in landing Frisch and Fitzsimmons, and the club already has begun to take on that new look promised by Durocher when he succeeded Mel Ott last year.

"They are the kind of men this club needs as guides," Durocher said. "Both were fighting ball players and they still retain their old fire and smartness.

"Both have been major league managers and they will work wonders with the youngsters on our club."

Durocher said that he had discussed trades with several clubs and declared that he stands ready to trade any player on the club provided the trade will help the Giants.

"Give me one more pitcher to go with Jones, Jansen and Kennedy and we will be right up in the pennant hunt.

"Even as we are today, we will be able to put up a much better fight than we did last year."

Welch Underdog In Miller Bout

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4—Eighteen-year-old Jimmy Welch of Columbus starts his main-bout career tonight in his home town against Eddie Miller of Dayton.

Welch is a 9-5 underdog despite the fact that he has won 30 of his 31 starts.

Sokolsky's

because he told the truth in "I Confess," he was boycotted and condemned. During the war, instead of keeping his government on the qui vive, he worked at menial tasks in a shipyard.

For 20 years Gitlow has been living in this manner while fighting Communism tooth and nail. One of his most recent and valued achievements is the organization with Rabbi Benjamin Schultz of the American Jewish League Against Communism, something that needed doing long ago.

Now he has written a new book, "The Whole Of Their Lives," in which he tells the story of the men who made this movement which has set out to conquer the world—and which in a large measure is succeeding because liberals and ostriches are incapable of understanding its conspiratorial and wicked nature. And they denouce Benjamin Gitlow because he is an ex-radical. St. Paul, be it remembered, was an ex-Pharisee.

Canadian Duo Holding Lead

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—Cesare Moretti and Rene Cyr maintained a slight lead today in Chicago's 47th international six-day bike race as the 11 teams rolled past the 76th hour.

The Canadian duo's margin was based on its 264-point total rung up after a night of spectacular jamming.

In British show business a singer or musician who performs well is known as a "nice noise."

NEWS VIEWS

BY JOE MOATS

In New York the Society of Industrial Engineers complained they had improved on almost everything but man himself. So they started designing the man of the future. He'll have radar ears that move in all directions. His skull will be hinged, so he can "blow his top" more easily, and he'll have skin that even an atom bomb can't mar. The man of the future, according to the thinkers, will have a built-in cigarette and no stomach. . .which means no ulcers! His nose will be carrot-shaped, so he can hang his morning paper on it while he butters his toast. Well, if that's what we can expect, there's just one comment . . ."Help!"

In Vienna, a man admitted in court he had three wives, but asked for mercy on the grounds that he had "a very poor memory". He ought to tie a string around his ring finger. Incidentally, it'll pay you to remember that we offer you hospitable, courteous service, along with the best values of the day. Follow the route of smart people, it'll lead you directly to JOE MOATS MOTOR SALES, 159 E. Franklin St. Save money on tire wear and strain on driving gear. Fitzsimmons And Frisch Back Again

Stars Return To Giant Fold

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Frankie Frisch and Freddie Fitzsimmons are back in the New York giants fold as coaches.

Both rose to fame on the Giants under the late John McGraw; Frisch as one of the best second basemen of all time and Fitzsimmons as the star knuckle ball artist of his day.

Frisch abandoned his $17,500 job as a baseball broadcaster to get back in a monkey suit and Horace Stoneham, Giants' president, intimated today that Frankie will do about as well coaching.

Baseball men agreed today that Manager Leo Durocher had made a 10-strike in landing Frisch and Fitzsimmons, and the club already has begun to take on that new look promised by Durocher when he succeeded Mel Ott last year.

"They are the kind of men this club needs as guides," Durocher said. "Both were fighting ball players and they still retain their old fire and smartness.

"Both have been major league managers and they will work wonders with the youngsters on our club."

Durocher said that he had discussed trades with several clubs and declared that he stands ready to trade any player on the club provided the trade will help the Giants.

"Give me one more pitcher to go with Jones, Jansen and Kennedy and we will be right up in the pennant hunt.

"Even as we are today, we will be able to put up a much better fight than we did last year."

Canadian Duo Holding Lead

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—Cesare Moretti and Rene Cyr maintained a slight lead today in Chicago's 47th international six-day bike race as the 11 teams rolled past the 76th hour.

The Canadian duo's margin was based on its 264-point total rung up after a night of spectacular jamming.

REST TO BRING VICTORY?

New Fire Sweeps Tigers; Big Season Finale Eyed

A new fire swept into Circleville Tiger workouts this week as they eyed the season finale Nov. 12 against the Washington Blue Lions.

Undefeated and untied in seven starts to date, the local footballers need the Washington game to make a clean sweep of the season. . .and cop South Central Ohio league honors.

However, the Lions of Washington are not lax in preparations for the championship tilt, setting up a new offense and laying out extensive defensive for the encounter.

The Washington aggregation is reported to have swung its offensive tactics from its former single wing attack into the "T", a faster brand of attack with which a speedy backfield can rip opposing lines to shreds before knowing what happened. And the Lion squad is reported to have just such a backfield, having copped all seven of its encounters to date by impressive exhibitions and final scores.

Scatbacks Bill Smith and Charles Campbell on the Lion 11 pose the toughest offensive threat to the Red and Black, Smith vying for SCO league honors as the top back and Campbell backing him up with substantial gains.

HOWEVER, Harold "Sandy" Hill of the local crew is expected to give the Fayette Countians their share of offensive maneuvers with his swivel hips and unerring straight arm.

Hill has sparked the Tiger aggregation to its current undefeated record, personally toting the leather into enemy paydirt 14 times, tossing the oval for an additional nine TD's and booting 16 extra points.

Hill failed to make a too-impressive showing against the Greenfield Tigers last Friday, although he tossed two touchdown passes and converted twice. Hill was unable to shake loose for his usual long lopes through opposing lines when the Greenfield forward wall reared to pile Circleville's offensives at scrimmake. Hill did, however, romp around his right end once in the fracas to pick up 40 yards.

Although local fans were a trifle disappointed because Hill was rested in the skirmish, they were heartened by the performance of Junior Phiefer, sparkplugging the team for the night.

Phiefer, relatively unknown other than an occasional starter for the Red and Black, Friday literally set the rough McClain line on its collective ear, picking up yardage on play after play and scoring one of the Tiger Tallies.

Hill and Phiefer, along with power from Charles Sabine and "brains' Bob McAlister, are expected to team up to give the Washingtoners a rough time of it.

Washington Coach Fred Pierson, scouting the Circleville-Greenfield tussle from the press box, was more than a little perturbed by the Tiger offense, although he claimed to be "unworried" by the Circleville "lackadaisical defense."

Circleville fans are rooting highly for the local Red and Blackers, some saying that with the advantage of a week's rest they can predict a narrow win over Washington—others saying it will be a tough contest because the Tigers have no game this Friday.

All are agreed, however, that the Washington machine probably will be not so well oiled after its Friday night encounter with the rough Upper Arlington aggregations.

Missouri Gets Nod To Annex Big 7 Crown

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Today's sample of predictions shows that Missouri will beat Oklahoma for the Big Seven football championship Saturday.

Coach Don Faurot is hopeful but far from sure of the outcome.

"We've got a pretty good first team," said the inventor of the winged or Missouri "T", "but we aren't deep, and those Sooners are very big and very good.

"Bert Wilkinson (the Oklahoma coach) uses the same offensive formation that we do. But he's got two big lines to alternate ahead of it, while we have only one line that's really big league.

"I mean big league in our league, of course. Which isn't Notre Dame or Big Nine big league.

"Oklahoma is always tough and particularly so on its own field. The way I see this game our hopes depend on whether Entsminger is hitting with his passes or missing 'em.

"Buss (that's Entsminger, a St. Joseph, Mo., Boy) is the only real star we've got in our backfield. The rest of our backs are all right but not the kind you'll be reading about in any All-America selections."

So the polls reveal that they'll throw a "seven" for the Big Seven championship against Oklahoma Saturday. They'll still have Nebraska and Kansas to beat after that, of course.

Stil, if the Sooners can't stop 'em sooner, it's doubtful if the Cornhuskers and Jayhawks will later.

Hockey Champs Lose Game To All-Star Team

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 — The National Hockey League's all-star dream game has celebrated its second birthday, and it was apparent today that history is ready to repeat itself as often as necessary.

In the first all-star game, played at Toronto a year ago, the Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup champions, lost to the aces of the other five league teams, 4 to 3.

In the second game, played here last night, the Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup champions, lost to the aces of the other five teams, 3 to 1.

The score was different last night, but the issue never was in doubt, as 15,681 spectators will attest. The stars, 18-strong and every man a master, followed a dismal first period by scoring twice within the first four minutes of the second stanza.

Toronto got a goal two minutes later, but the Chicago Blackhawks' two all-star representatives, Gaye Steward and Doug Bentley, teamed to produce the final all-star goal 28 seconds before the period ended.

DENVER, Nov. 4—Football experts in Denver are costing a Denver tailor money.

Harry Bitman started a "pick ten" football game contest with a suit of clothes, to be given the person who turned in the nearest correct list of forecasts for the scores of 10 grid games.

For the week ending Oct. 30 there were 412 perfect entries.

Bitman is paying up. The cost is said to be $31,500.

Cleveland Set To Honor Stars

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4 — Bill Veeck, Cleveland Indians' president, and the Bartunek Clothes, runnersup for the National Amateur Baseball Federation title, will be honored tonight at the Cleveland Baseball Federation's "Banquet of Champions."

Frank Lausche, newly-elected governor and a former Cleveland sandlotter, also is expected to attend the fete.

Conn Planning Comeback With Louis Match

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—Billy Conn smiled his dimpled Billy-the-Kid smile today and said:

"Joe Louis? I want to fight him so bad I'd fight him anywhere. I'd fight him in my garage in Pittsburgh."

Actually, he is going to fight him in a garage in Chicago—an oversized garage called the International Amphitheatre — in a six-round exhibition match the night of Dec. 10.

That statement is subject to the approval of the Illinois Athletic Commission.

"It's going to be my comeback," Conn explained. He dipped a long silver spoon into a strawberry parfait and said he weighed 190 pounds, more than ever before in his career.

"The last time I fought Louis," Conn elaborated, using the word "fought" loosely, "I was ashamed. After losing that fight in June of 1946 at Yankee Stadium I was disgusted with myself. I wanted to square myself, and the way I felt then I wasn't quite sure how to do it."

Now, under the wing of Robert Jordan, an Oklahoma oil man who has undertaken to be his manager, Conn is coming back. Frankie Harmon, long-time promoter of athletic doings in Chicago, is putting on the amphitheatre show next month.

Chisox Chiefs Plan Shakeup

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—The Chicago White Sox high command is slated to get down today to brass tacks—namely, something better than eight-place players—when it holds its first conference since the recent housecleaning.

Young Charley Comiskey, General Manager Frank Lane and Team Manager Jack Onslow scheduled a huddle to discuss the recent individual sallies in the hunt for better talent.

Comiskey said he had sounded out the St. Louis Browns, the Detroit Tigers and the Philadelphia Athletics. Onslow has been talking with the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees.

Fesler Talks About Game

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4 — Ohio State Coach Wes Fesler is a man of few words and immediate goals.

Answering a questioner on whether highly touted Freshman Back Vic Janowicz will be on the first string next year, Fesler remarked that he thought that was just a bit of jumping the gun. He said quietly:

"We play Pittsburgh next Saturday."

Explaining last week's 21-7 defeat, Fesler said:

"Northwestern had three of the best line backers in collegiate football. We knew Sarkisian was good, but we didn't know about the other two fellows, Sundheim and Wietecha. That Sundheim looks like All-America."

20-Mile Horse Race Booked For Sunday

Circleville Western Horse Club Sunday will sponsor a 20-mile marathon horse race from Adelphi into Pickaway County Fairgrounds.

Riders interested in entering the event are to bring their horses to the Fairgrounds at 10:30 a. m. Sunday. They will be carted to the starting line in Adelphi.

Members of the club say the reason for carting the animals to the starting post definitely is not because the horses are not up to standard. Rather, they say, a round trip on horseback to the Adelphi post would be rather hard on the rider's—umm—equilibrium.

More than 20 entries are expected in the event, each required to post a $1 entry fee. The horses will use only dirt-surfaced roads on their return trip until they reach Circleville city limits.

Prizes will be awarded the first, second, third and fourth place horse and rider, and local enthusiasts are advised they might be able to get a glimpse of the animals as they race into the fairgrounds to claim prizes at about 4 p. m.

3 Major Factors Cited For Successful Cattlemen

2 Sources Of Profit Detailed

Feedlot Skill Is Long Suit

There are three big factors for the prospective cattle-feeder to consider in making up a well-planned program, himself, his farm and the price outlook, according to Larry A. Best, Pickaway County Agricultural agent.

The two sources of profit in cattle-feeding should be kept in mind. One source is to make a profit on the weight bought by selling it at a higher price. The other is to make a profit from the gain in weight.

If a farmer's long suit is skill in the feedlot, he should choose calves or light yearlings which respond to skillful feeding.

They will put on gains cheaper than heavier cattle. They usually are priced so they offer a chance for profit from the feeding end of the business. Moreover, the cash risk is smaller because less weight is purchased.

Heavy cattle are good profit prospects for the farmer who is a shrewd buyer and seller, good at estimating price outlook and is willing to take risks. The profits come mainly from margins.

The cattle should be fitted to the farm. Plenty of corn and roughage indicate lighter animals. The farmer with corn but little roughage should consider heavy cattle. Abundant roughage and little corn may suggest plainer cattle.

A "must" for the cattle feeder is to keep up-to-date on the business outlook. He needs to know how to use knowledge in planning his feeding operations. He needs to know when to buy, what kind and how many.

REUNION IS JOYFUL for William Baran, a Gary, Ind., furniture dealer, and his two daughters, Alina, 16, and Teresa, 12. They met at New York International airport after being separated since 1939, when Baran was caught in the United States by the war's outbreak while his daughters and his wife remained in Poland. He lost contact with them until 1945 when he located them in a concentration camp. Mrs. Baran will arrive a few days later. (International)

Truman Seen Sharpening Ax For Top Posts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 —Informed quarters in Washington expressed belief today that President Truman may make sweeping changes in his cabinet when he takes office in January for a four-year term.

Speculation centered on a shift in the state department high command and replacements for Defense Secretary Forrestal and several other cabinet officers.

Responsible sources said that Secretary of State Marshall and under Secretary Lovett may retire after Jan. 20.

Both Marshall and Lovett apparently advised Mr. Truman before the election that they wished to retire regardless of the outcome.

In fact, Marshall, who has devoted 47 of his 68 years to military and diplomatic duties, repeated in Paris yesterday his desire to retire to his Leesburg, Va., estate.

Lovett told reporters that he would make no statement until he conferred with Marshall.

The purge in the cabinet ranks is generally believed to be aimed at some men who failed to aid Mr. Truman in his campaign for election.

Reportedly scheduled for replacement are Forrestal and Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and possibly Secretary of Interior Krug.

Union Head Says T-H Law Doomed

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4—President Hugo Ernst of the hotel, restaurant employes and bartenders union said today the election of President Truman was "a referendum of the Taft-Hartley Act and all it stands for."

Ernst, who heads the third largest AFL union in the U. S., said:

"The American people have sustained the president's veto."

He stated:

"It is clear that the Jeremiahs who were celebrating the eclipse of labor as a political factor—like the pollsters who have been so roundly rebuked—were dead wrong. The enormous political vitality of organized labor has been established for keeps."

No case ever has been recorded of the germination of seeds more than 25 years old.
